

March 2025

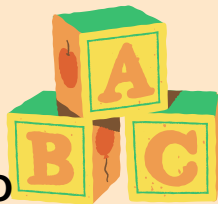

So long, February! Last month, our Playschool children have been excited with sensory explorations both indoor and outdoor. They also had a fun Valentine's party. Again, we thank you all for the sweet treats!

Hello March! With much welcomed mild temperatures, they have been enjoying some outdoor play. We look forward to more time outside for fun and play-based learning.

Sensory Play: Part 1

Sensory play activities tend to be very engaging for children. Whether it is blowing bubbles, dancing to music or having some fun with sand and water play, these activities that stimulate the senses, tend to hold a child's attention, allowing more opportunities to practice turn taking. They also encourage communication. - Resource: Manitoba Possible

Here's a few hands-on activities that the children have been busy with recently in our sensory bins.
