Rethinking How We Support Grieving Children

In recognition of Children's Grief Awareness Day, Avow Kids invites you to The Grief Lab, a free, interactive learning experience designed to strengthen how we understand, respond to, and support children navigating grief and loss.

Through engaging discussions, realistic case scenarios, and hands-on activities, participants will explore compassionate communication strategies, examine the environments and relationships that influence a child's grief experience, and develop practical approaches they can apply within their own professional or community settings.

Designed for clinicians, educators, healthcare professionals, faith leaders, youth-serving organizations, and community members, The Grief Lab offers a meaningful opportunity to build knowledge, strengthen confidence, and develop actionable strategies for supporting grieving children.

Together, we can create more compassionate, informed, and supportive communities where grieving children feel heard, understood, and never alone.
