A NOTE ON PRINTING: If you want to print out a copy of this Almanac, I STRONGLY suggest using a professional printer rather than an “at home” printer. Some of the graphics used may not print properly on a desktop printer. Many professional printers allow you to print a PDF file from a USB drive or by e-mailing them a PDF file (choose black-and-white printing to save money; this Almanac has no color images). If this is not an option for you and you still wish to have a printed copy, e-mail me at allan.s.barrie@gmail.com or send me a message on Twitter @AlGetzWrestling and we can work something out.

INTRODUCTION

REAL DATA FOR A NOT-SO-REAL SPORT

A few years ago, I found myself wondering if there was a way to rank professional wrestlers in a way that made sense and that took into account the unique nature of professional wrestling. For numerous reasons, most of the ways of measuring success in traditional sports (for both teams and individuals) are not transferrable to “sports entertainment”, as they call pro wrestling today.

The first step in this process was identifying what, exactly, I’m trying to measure. I wasn’t looking to measure what many people refer to as workrate, where a skilled wrestler such as Eddy Guerrero or Dean Malenko might be rated above Hulk Hogan or Kamala. Instead, I was looking to arrange wrestlers in something akin to a depth chart, based on how the promoters and/or bookers wanted fans to perceive the wrestlers. If we had a time machine and could go back and ask Bill Watts to put together a depth chart for all the wrestlers in Mid-South Wrestling in the spring of 1984, he’d probably be able to whip up a list of who he was pushing as the top guys, who was slightly lower on the food chain, and so on and so forth down to the preliminary wrestlers. By that same token, you might also use that time machine to find a fan who watched Mid-South Wrestling in the spring of 1984, one that watched it with suspension of disbelief, and ask them who they considered to be the top wrestlers in the territory, the next level down, and so on and so forth on down the line. Chances are those lists would be very similar.

As I researched old wrestling cards for various territories over various years, it struck me that there’s information embedded in the structure of these cards. The main event, the match which was pushed as the most important of all the matches being presented on a given night in a given town, typically featured main event level wrestlers. Conversely, the opening matches typically featured preliminary wrestlers, or on occasion newcomers being “pushed” by getting wins over preliminary wrestlers. Over a period of time, I developed a metric that I call the SPOT Rating. SPOT stands for Statistical Position Over Time, and it measures a wrestlers’ average position (or, their spot) on the cards. The SPOT Rating is a number between 0 and 1 and is usually displayed to two decimal places. The highest possible SPOT is 1.00 and means the wrestler was always advertised in the main event during a certain period of time.

This Almanac uses the SPOT Rating to rank the wrestlers in a given territory at a given time based on how they were positioned. It uses what I generally refer to as a “weekly SPOT Rating”. In reality, each weekly number is based on a rolling, weighted five-week period. This allows us to have a large enough set of data for each “week” to be meaningful, while still enabling us to see short-term changes in the SPOT Rating (for example, as a wrestler is getting a push, they will move up the cards incrementally over a period of time).

Instead of listing the actual numbers for each and every week in this Almanac, I break it up into four categories and use different shades of gray to represent each category (see example on next page).

The four categories (and their respective SPOT Ratings) are as follows:

Main Eventers had an average SPOT Rating of .80 or above (with a SPOT above .90 having slightly darker shading);

Upper Mid-Carders had an average SPOT Rating between .60 and .80;

Mid-Carders had an average SPOT Rating between .40 and .60;

Preliminary Wrestlers had a SPOT Rating under .40

As a general rule of thumb, Main Eventers, Upper Mid-Carders and Mid-Carders are what I would call “pushed entities”, wrestlers who are presented on television (and at the house shows) as skilled wrestlers capable of winning matches against top competition and competing for titles, with the Mid-Carders usually positioned a couple of steps below the Upper Mid-Carders and Main Eventers. Preliminary Wrestlers (in particular, those who never rise above that level) are generally not given much of a push, and probably trade wins and losses with other preliminary wrestlers while rarely, if ever, getting wins on television.

Let's look at an example. Here is the entry for The Patriot (Bobby Hart), from the "Roster" section of this Almanac.

THE PATRIOT (.597 SPOT – heel – 5.48 bookings per week)

	JAN	FEB	MAR	APR	MAY	JUN	JUL	AUG	SEP	OCT	NOV	DEC
MAIN EVENT
UPPER MID
MIDCARDER
PRELIMINARY

This is a clear example of a newcomer starting in the territory (in August) and getting "pushed" up the cards gradually. The Patriot starts out in the mid-cards and after several weeks moves up to Upper Mid-Card status in the second week of September, when his weekly SPOT Rating goes above a .60 for the first time. After a few more weeks, his SPOT Rating crosses over the .80 threshold in the last week of September, putting him in the Main Eventer category. This coincides with him beginning a series of matches against Ciclon Negro. As that feud runs its course, The Patriot is moved back down the cards. In January he went to All Japan for about a month and, upon his return, started teaming regularly with a second masked Patriot (Bob Griffin).

Just above the chart is the "stat line" for The Patriot. It shows you his average weekly SPOT Rating in this territory in 1973 (a .597, technically in the Mid-Carder category but a mere rounding error away from being in the Upper Mid-Carder category). While I normally display SPOT as a two-digit decimal, for this specific instance I am showing it to three digits so you can see why he was placed in the Mid-Carder category. The stat line also lists whether the wrestler was a babyface or a heel and notes if that changed at all during the course of the year.

The final piece of data in the stat line is the average number of bookings per week for that wrestler. This is based on the advertised lineups for all known house shows in the territory during the year. As you look through the Roster section, you'll note that the number of bookings per week for many of the wrestlers in the territory fall in the same range, though there are exceptions. There are generally two types of wrestlers with less bookings per week than most. The first category is established veterans, including those who are also part of the behind-the-scenes "office" (all three members of the Funk family) or who are just brought in to work certain cities in the territory (Black Gordman & Goliath). The second category includes some wrestlers lower on the cards. There is significant evidence that many of the preliminary wrestlers (and even some mid-carders) in various territories were not booked to wrestle every night of the week. They are likely still attending the shows, to observe and learn and perhaps help set up or perform other functions backstage, to substitute for an advertised wrestler that is unable to make the show, and in some cases to work as referees. So even if they're not wrestling every night, they're probably at a wrestling show every night.

Another benefit of the bookings per week stat is that it gives us a general idea of how complete the house show records are. If we accept that most territories ran house shows 6 or 7 nights a week (many territories took Sundays off in the '70s, and there are also times where a television taping is run in lieu of house shows some nights), then we would expect most of the "full timers" in the territory to have that many bookings per week. In this Almanac, most of the full timers fall in the range of 4-6 bookings per week. We can tell by the calendar of house shows (see the House Shows section beginning on page 18) that this territory ran seven nights a week, so we can estimate that our records are likely between 70-75% complete (taking the midpoint of the 4-6 average bookings per week and dividing it by 7).

ABOUT THE TERRITORY

Western States Sports (often referred to as “West Texas” or “the Amarillo territory”) was founded by Dory Detton in 1946. Detton staged the first wrestling card in Amarillo in over five years on March 14th of that year. The promotion joined the NWA in 1951. Detton sold the territory to Karl “Doc” Sarpolis in 1955 for $75,000 (the equivalent of over $700,000 today). Sarpolis offered one of his top stars the opportunity to buy into the territory as well.

That top star was Dory Funk, who moved to the Amarillo area permanently in 1949 with his wife Betty and two young sons, Dory Jr. and Terry. In addition to wrestling, Dory worked closely with Cal Farley’s Boys Ranch, a home for wayward young men, and hosted a local sports show on TV. After Sarpolis died in 1967, Dory purchased the remaining shares of the territory from his widow.

Dory’s sons both turned pro at the age of 21, Dory Jr. in early 1963 and Terry in late 1965. It is believed that Terry’s first professional matches occurred on spot shows about a week after the West Texas State football team played their last regular season game during Terry’s senior year. Terry was an offensive tackle for the team, and wrestling professionally prior to that could have affected his eligibility. Both rose through the ranks quickly, with Dory Jr. defeating Gene Kiniski to win the NWA World Heavyweight title on February 11, 1969, in Tampa. Not only was Dory Jr. in demand by promoters across the NWA to defend the title, but so was his brother. It was not uncommon to see a wrestler in another territory beat Terry in order to “earn” a title shot with Dory Jr. Between this and the fact that Dory Sr. wore two hats as both a wrestler and the owner of Western States Sports, all three of them were regulars but not necessarily full-timers in their home base in early 1973.

The territory ran several towns weekly, including Amarillo, Abilene, Hereford, Lubbock, Odessa, and El Paso in Texas and Albuquerque and Clovis in New Mexico. As with most territories, spot shows occurred in smaller towns in those two states and there was the occasional foray into Colorado and even Utah.

1973 was an eventful year for the Funk family. Dory Jr. lost the NWA World Heavyweight title to Harley Race on May 24th in Kansas City. Race would then lose the title to Jack Brisco less than 2 months later in Houston. Wrestling lore has long stated that Funk was originally slated to drop the title directly to Brisco but balked at the idea. A dislocated shoulder suffered by Dory Jr. on February 28th in a freak accident on his father’s ranch in Umbarger, TX has long been considered suspect by many. But the biggest family tragedy of the year was still to come. On June 3rd, Dory Sr. passed away from a heart attack (suffered in the evening hours of June 2nd) at the age of 54.

In true “the show must go on” fashion, it doesn’t appear that any of the house shows the following week were cancelled, though both Terry and Dory Jr. took some time off and several cards were rebooked. Additionally, we don’t know if the 2 shows booked for New Mexico the evening of the 3rd went on as scheduled. Terry returned to the ring on June 8th, while Dory Jr. seems to have returned a few days later. It is a testament to the network of local promoters that had been working for the Funks (including Pat O’Dowdy, Gory Guerrero, Don Slatton, Mike London, Nick Roberts, and Jerry Kozak) that the territory continued seamlessly as Dory’s sons took over the reins behind the scenes.

The territory was known for a rougher in-ring style than many other territories. It is generally believed that the first ever Texas death match occurred in Amarillo on August 21, 1952, between Dory Funk and Danny McShain. While the match was advertised as a “fight to the death”, the description of the match in The Amarillo Daily News clearly shows it was contested under the same set of rules as the generally accepted rules for a Texas death match.

For this Almanac, every effort has been made to distinguish between Dory Sr. (generally listed as “Dory Funk”) and Dory Jr. (generally listed as “Dory Funk Jr.”) when it comes to reading and transcribing match listings.

TALENT ROSTER

Here is a look at the regulars in the territory during the year. There is no set definition for a regular, but generally speaking they wrestled in the territory for at least three weeks consecutively and this was their primary territory during that time. For each wrestler, we list their average SPOT Rating for the year, whether they were a babyface or a heel and their average number of bookings per week in this territory during the year. Each wrestler also has a small chart that quickly shows you when they were here and what category their short-term SPOT Rating fit into. These are shown only for weeks where a wrestler has an average of more than one booking per week for at least 3 weeks out of a rolling 5-week period.

Main Eventers had an average SPOT Rating of .80 or above;
Upper Mid-Carders had an average SPOT Rating between .60 and .80;
Mid-Carders had an average SPOT Rating between .40 and .60;
Preliminary Wrestlers had a SPOT Rating under .40

Dory Jr. spent much of the first couple of months of the year defending the NWA World Heavyweight title in various territories, including Florida, Heart of America (and St. Louis), East Texas, Big Time (Detroit), and Maple Leaf. After the accident where he dislocated his shoulder on February 28th, he appears to have wrestled against The Sheik in Hawaii on March 7th, losing by countout. It's entirely possible he gutted the match out despite an injury, or this may be evidence about the validity of the accident/injury, with the thinking that him wrestling in Hawaii wouldn't make 'the news' on the mainland.

With his older brother having spent much of the last few years travelling the world and his father winding down his career as an active wrestler, Terry took the family mantle both in the ring and, after the death of Sr., behind the scenes to some extent. It's worth noting that he doesn't appear on the list of the top feuds in the territory during the year, as he wrestled less frequently here than most of the rest of the crew.

The elder Funk would wrestle a couple of times per week on average, spread out amongst all the main towns of the territory. By this point in time, he had been a mainstay here for 25 years. While records are not complete, there is some evidence of him decreasing his in-ring activity starting in 1969.

Enrique Gregory Romero, wrestling for most of his career as “Rapid” Ricky Romero, turned pro in 1952. After a few years wrestling in Southern California, he first made his way to West Texas in 1957. While he did have a few runs with the Western States Heavyweight title, he was more often holding (or challenging for) the Rocky Mountain Heavyweight title. Ricky held numerous tag team titles in different territories; among his many partners over the years were all three members of the Funk family, Nick Bockwinkel, Pedro Morales, the Silver Streak (his son, better known as Jay Youngblood), Akihisa Takachiho (Great Kabuki), and Eddie Gilbert.

A year younger than Terry Funk, Murdoch and Dusty Rhodes were said to have often been present at house shows in Amarillo prior to their wrestling careers, hooting and hollering and cheering on Terry. Dick’s earliest pro matches appear to have been in 1966 and his first in-ring appearances in this territory were in the fall of 1967. He had numerous runs here over the following 5 years and returned in the summer after a tour with the IWE in Japan. His babyface turn in August may have been the first time he was positioned as a babyface here.

Born in Venezuela, Ramon Eduardo Rodriguez wrestled as Reyes Rodriguez early in his career before taking the ring name Ciclon Negro (the Black Cyclone) in 1960. He first came here in 1971. He was “made” as a top star in Amarillo in the summer of 1972 by winning a series of Texas death matches, culminating in a victory over Dory Funk (Sr.) on 8/31/72, beating the master in his own specialty match and in the process winning the Western States Heavyweight title.

While there isn’t much footage of an in-his-prime Kox, many of his contemporaries list him as among the best professional wrestlers that they ever worked with. Much like his protégé (both in real life and in some territory storylines) Dick Murdoch, he had the uncanny ability to integrate comedic moments into his role as a toughie heel without losing his heat. Kox, born Herbert Alan Gerwig, was a major star everywhere he went in the U.S., Japan, and Australia.

In a business known for crazy characters both in and out of the ring, Don Kalt aka Don Fargo may have been the craziest one of all. Don Slatton was a policeman in Abilene who got some publicity in December 1961 after he wrote a ticket to Santa Claus (presumably someone dressed as Santa, though the newspaper didn't specify) for driving a golf cart without a license. The following year he arrested Billie Sol Estes, a businessman/financier/fraudster with ties to then-Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, after he spotted Estes turning the wrong way onto a one-way street. He was the local promoter in Abilene and, because he technically operated the town (and spot shows in the surrounding area) as his own promotion, had some leeway when it came to booking. This enabled him to push himself as a big star in his hometown, whereas he was generally lower on the cards in his appearances in other Western States Sports towns. If we only look at his SPOT Rating in Abilene, he's a Main Eventer with a SPOT of .85; in all the other towns, he had just a .59 SPOT.

He and his brothers would often spend the winter & spring wrestling in the U.S. before heading back up north to wrestle for the Eastern Sports Association (“the Maritimes”), a territory owned by Yvon’s brothers Jean-Louis (Rudy Kay) and Romeo (Terry Kay) and Al Zinck that ran seasonally.

Born in London, Alfred George James Hayes was a black belt in judo prior to becoming a wrestler. Billed as “Judo” Al Hayes for much of his career on the British circuit, he first came to the U.S. in 1971, arriving in Amarillo as a babyface and staying here for almost two years. He left in August and went to Heart of America (Central States), where he worked as a heel and teamed up with Roger Kirby.

Karl and his “brother” Kurt Von Steiger were mainstays in Portland and Vancouver among other places between 1967 and 1972. Karl first came here with Kurt in May of 1972. However, Kurt didn’t stay long, going to Arizona in June while Karl stayed. In the summer of 1973, Karl seems to have taken some time off before resurfacing a couple of months later, wrestling in the McGuirk territory for about a month and then returning here full-time.

At the beginning of the year, Alex was wrestling under a mask as The Black Devil, though he may have been unmasked in some towns. In late 1972, he had been part of a team along with The Red Devil (Gene Sanizzaro aka Flash Monroe), managed by J.C. Dykes. After leaving here in March, he went to the McGuirk territory, where he teamed with another export from Amarillo, El Gran Tapia. Perez had been a Golden Gloves boxer, a semi-pro baseball player, and a deputy for the Potter County (Texas) Sheriff’s office before turning to pro wrestling in the 1950s.

After competing in the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Tsuruta was coveted by all four promotions in Japan. Giant Baba, of the newly-formed All Japan Pro Wrestling, held a press conference on October 31, 1972, to announce Tsuruta's signing. After four months of training, he was sent to Amarillo and had his first-ever match a day after arriving in the U.S. While his SPOT Rating never went above Mid-Carder status, he did have his fair share of high profile bouts during his time here. Among these was a shot at then-World champ Dory Jr. on May 20th in Albuquerque.

Ron Pope possessed one of the most impressive physiques in wrestling in the early 70s while wrestling as The Magnificent Zulu. Unfortunately, he seems not to have possessed an impressive aptitude for pro wrestling. Time after time, promoters and/or bookers would bring in him based on his look, convinced they could make a star out of him. In just a matter of weeks, they would see the error of their ways and Pope would be sent packing.

Gordon Nelson was born in Winnipeg, but his career took a couple of international detours before he first set foot in U.S. rings. He turned pro in 1953, wrestling for a few years in Canada before competing in England, Germany, and Austria. In 1962 he wrestled for Capitol Sports, Mid-Atlantic, and McGuirk. He first came to Amarillo in 1970 as the masked "Mr. Wrestling". In 1973, he was unmasked in at least 2 cities as the result of losses against Killer Karl Krupp in stipulation matches where Krupp would have had to "leave town" if he lost. It appears that he continued to use the Mr. Wrestling name in some towns after the unmasking and was billed as Gordon Nelson in others.

The identity of this version of the Medics is currently unknown. They were mostly booked on the Sunday cards in New Mexico and not used as full-timers, so they may not have been a well-known version of the team. Jim Starr & Tom Andrews, who worked as the Medics and also the Interns over the years, were in Northern California at the time, which for all intents and purposes excludes them. I suppose it's possible that it was Billy Garrett & Dick Dunn, but it's more likely they threw hoods over two local preliminary wrestlers for a handful of shows.

The league didn't begin play until the following summer, and Hansen is definitely wrestling full-time while that first season was going on, so one can infer that he didn't make the team.

A colorful character if there ever was one, Colt's outside of the ring exploits overshadowed those that took place inside the ring. Due to him often working in smaller territories whose records have not been thoroughly documented, there are large gaps in his career record. He had been wrestling in Arizona at the start of the year and came here in late January. After just a few weeks, he disappears. Besides one possible booking in Hawaii in February, his next known whereabouts are back in Arizona in May. Much of his life before and after wrestling is shrouded in mystery. Brisco defeated Lane in the second round en route to winning in his weight class. McCreery wrestled for most of the 1970s primarily in the south, using the name Mack Quarry in some places and his real name (sometimes spelled McCreary) in others.

The son of Ed Bohn, a former sparring partner of Jack Dempsey who later built the famed Pig 'N Whistle restaurant/motel/service station in Denver, Colorado, Bohn's pro wrestling career seems to have consisted entirely of this run in Amarillo and a handful of matches for Gulas in September. It's always possible he wrestled under a different ring name, but currently there is no other info available about him in wrestling. According to his obituary (he passed away in 2018), Jerry was also a geologist who "combed the Rocky Mountains and Alaska for gold, silver and oil".

OTHER WRESTLERS BOOKED/ADVERTISED IN THE TERRITORY

This section features every other wrestler that had at least one known advertised booking here during the year. It includes touring attractions such as a visiting World champion, special attractions (Andre the Giant/Haystack Calhoun/McGuire Twins, etc.), and other nationally known stars. It also includes wrestlers who came in for a week or so from elsewhere or were booked for a small number of shows here while travelling and wrestlers who competed solely on a part-time basis.

NATIONALLY KNOWN STARS

Blackjack Mulligan, Danny Hodge, El Santo, Ernie Ladd, Gory Guerrero, Harley Race, Jack Brisco, John Tolos, Mil Mascaras, Pat O'Connor, and The Sheik

JUST PASSING THROUGH

Anton Geesink (trained by Dory Funk Jr. and had at least one match here in the fall before debuting in All Japan in November), Ben Justice, Bob Griffin, Bobby Lane, Bull Ramos, Chavo Guerrero, Fred Curry, Gypsy Joe (most likely Gypsy Joe Rosario), Jose Lothario, Luis Martinez, Masio Koma, Mike Paidousis, Nick Roberts, Oni Wiki Wiki, Pak Song, Pete Sanchez, Reggie Parks, Ron Pritchard, Rufus R. Jones, Sputnik Monroe, Tarzan Baxter, and Tokyo Tom

PART-TIME PRELIMINARY WRESTLERS

The Black Ace, Black Lobo (may have been a typo for either El Lobo or The Black Ace or Black Devi), Chico Cortez, Cornelio Hernandez, Dan Burr, Doctor X (probably not a well-known wrestler who used that name such as Beyer or Osborne), Eddie Heard, El Diablo, El Lobo (believed to be Ricky Romero Jr. aka Rick Youngblood), Golden Rogers, Green Dragon, Jose Garcia, Ken Farber (normally a referee but advertised for at least one match), Mark Shriner, Mask Super One, Mr. Aspermont and Mr. Clovis (as best I can tell, it doesn't appear either of these were a "wrestler is suspended or lost a loser leave town match but comes back under a mask" type of angle, and might not have been anyone of note), and Mr. X

WOMEN WRESTLERS

Betty Niccoli, Estella Molina, Fabulous Moolah, Joyce Grable, Kay Noble, Kay Starr, Marie Lavern, Marina Rey, Peggy Patterson, and Rachel Dubois. Their average SPOT Rating here was a .52

MALE MIDGET WRESTLERS

Billy the Kid, Bobo Johnson, Haiti Kid, Johnny Reb, Little Bruiser, Little Tokyo, Super Fly, and Wee Willie Wilson. Their average SPOT Rating here was a .55

FEMALE MIDGET WRESTLERS

Darling Dagmar and Diamond Lil. Their average SPOT Rating here was a .49

MANAGERS

J.C. Dykes was managing The Black Devil (Alex Perez) and Karl Von Steiger when 1973 began, and also managed Don & Johnny Fargo when they came in shortly thereafter. He left in February and went to Georgia to manage The Infernos.

Jojo managed Hank James for the first half of the year. After that, he seems to have disappeared. I have no additional information on Jojo; it's always possible he used another name elsewhere.

Percival A. Friend managed The Patriot beginning in August, when both men came to the territory (Friend from Central States, Patriot from Gulas).

Gary Hart spent most of the year managing a few wrestlers in East Texas but had at least 3 bookings here. In July he was booked against Nick Kozak in Brownwood, and in October he was booked against Percival A. Friend in Amarillo and in a six-man tag the night before in Lubbock (with Percival on the other team).

LISTS

THE DIRTY DOZEN: TOP 12 WRESTLERS

(based on weekly SPOT Ratings and taking into account the # of weeks spent as a regular during the year)

1. Terry Funk
2. Dory Funk Jr.
3. Ricky Romero
4. Ciclon Negro
5. Dory Funk
6. Don Fargo
7. Killer Karl Krupp
8. Johnny Fargo
9. (tie) Dick Murdoch
9. (tie) Hank James
11. The Lawman
12. Jerry Kozak

TITLE HISTORIES

The following lineage is the result of my thorough examination of house show lineups. In some cases, it may differ from other title history sources and sites. Keep in mind that wrestling in the territorial era was often not “linear”; what is acknowledged in one town (or more accurately, TV market) is often not acknowledged in another area or perhaps is not acknowledged until a later date.

WESTERN STATES HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

- Terry Funk was the champion at the beginning of the year.
- Ciclon Negro won the title from Terry on July 6th in Abilene. Ciclon was billed as champion on July 13th. No further known title defenses were advertised until October 18th.
- Terry Funk was billed as champion on October 18th in Amarillo
- Kung Fu Lee won the title from Terry on October 18th. Lee was billed as champion on October 25th.
- There were no known advertised title matches for the rest of the year.
- Terry Funk is generally believed to have regained the title at some point before the end of the year.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

- Rick Romero was billed as champion on December 18th, 1972. The next mention of the title is on January 8th, 1973 in El Paso, where Karl Von Steiger was billed as champion. There were no known matches between the two during that time.
- Karl Von Steiger was still billed as champion as late as March 12th.
- The next mention of the title was on April 9th, where Ricky Romero was billed as champion. There were a few matches between Von Steiger and Romero during that time, but none were billed as title matches.
- The last mention of the title in 1973 was on October 7th, where Romero was still billed as champion.

BRASS KNUCKS TITLE/TROPHY

- Sources list Terry Funk as champion at the beginning of the year, but I cannot verify this.
- Ciclon Negro was billed as champion on January 25th. There were a couple of matches between Terry and Ciclon earlier in January, though neither were billed as a title match. At least one source lists Ciclon as having won the title from Terry on January 23rd, but Ciclon wrestled (and defeated) Moose Morowski in Odessa on that date.
- King Curtis was advertised as champion for a May 29th show in Big Spring, but there are no other mentions of him as champion and no known matches between Curtis and Ciclon prior to that date.
- Terry Funk won the title from Ciclon on July 4th in Lubbock.
- On July 26th, Ciclon Negro was billed as champion. There were a few matches between Terry and Ciclon in between July 4th and the 26th, but none were billed as title matches.
- Ricky Romero won the title from Ciclon on October 4th in Amarillo.
- Killer Karl Krupp won the title from Romero on November 1st in Amarillo.
- Killer Karl Kox won the title from Krupp on December 13th in Amarillo.

TELEVISION TITLE

- Nick Kozak was billed as champion on April 22nd, 1973, the earliest reference to the title during the year.
- Buck Robley won the title from Nick on June 29th in Abilene.
- Robley was billed as champion as late as July 16th, which is the last known reference to the title during the year.

INTERNATIONAL TAG TEAM TITLES

- These titles seem to have been brought over after the folding of the JWA in Japan in April. Killer Karl Krupp & Fritz Von Erich won the titles in Japan on April 18th. Sources state that Krupp & Karl Von Steiger were acknowledged as champions shortly thereafter, with Fritz “giving up” his share of the title and Krupp “choosing” Von Steiger as his new partner.
- Dory Funk Jr. & Terry Funk are billed as having won the titles on May 26th in Amarillo. That would have been a Saturday, so perhaps it was done on TV.
- Ciclon Negro & Killer Karl Kox won the titles from Dory Jr. & Terry on August 29th in Lubbock.
- Kox & Ciclon were still billed as champions as late as September 12th in Lubbock.
- On September 23rd in Clovis, a title match is advertised between Dory Jr. & Terry and Kox & Ciclon, but the ad does not specify which team were champs going in and results are not available.
- On October 24th in Lubbock, Dory Jr. & Terry are billed as champions.

WESTERN STATES TAG TEAM TITLES

- Lord Alfred Hayes & Nick Kozak were champions at the beginning of the year.
- Don & Johnny Fargo beat Hayes & Kozak to win the titles on February 8th in Amarillo.
- Ricky Romero & Moose Morowski beat Don & Johnny to win the titles on May 10th in Amarillo.
- Black Gordman & Goliath won the titles from Romero & Morowski on June 18th in El Paso.
- Romero & Morowski regained the titles from Gordman & Goliath on July 2nd in El Paso.
- Buck Robley & Hank James won the titles from Romero & Morowski on July 4th in Lubbock.
- Robley & James were still billed as champions as late as August 3rd.
- On August 6th in El Paso, Romero & Morowski were billed as champs. They were advertised to defend the titles against Ciclon Negro & Dick Murdoch. Results show that Ciclon & Murdoch won the match cleanly, but there is no mention of whether or not the titles changed hands. After the match, as Ciclon & Murdoch were double-teaming Romero, a miscommunication occurred and the two began to brawl with one another.
- Karl Von Steiger & The Patriot won the titles in a one-night tournament in Abilene on September 21st beating The Lawman & Dick Murdoch and Nick Kozak & Tomomi Tsuruta (some sources list the team of Buck Robley & The Viking as also being in the tournament).
- Jerry Kozak & Les Thornton beat Von Steiger & Patriot to win the titles on October 5th in Abilene.
- The next mention of the titles was on November 8th in Amarillo where Don Fargo & Hank James are billed as champs. There were no advertised title matches between October 5th and November 8th.
- Fargo & James were acknowledged as champions at the end of the year.

THE FEUDIN' FIVE: TOP 5 FEUDS

Using my proprietary FEUD (Frequent Encounters Using Data) Score metric, I compiled the 5 biggest feuds in the territory during the year. This takes into account not only how many times a specific match happens, but how those matches are distributed over time. When measuring a "feud" between Wrestler A and Wrestler B, I only take into account singles matches between the two; not any combinations of tag team matches or other types of bouts involving both men. In the event of a feud between two tag teams, I only take into account tag team matches between that precise combination of wrestlers.

For each feud, I list all known matches chronologically by town. This allows you to see the progression of the feud and how it may differ in each market. Match stipulations and results, where available, are listed.

DATA SOURCES & ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

KNOWN HOUSE SHOWS

A “known house show” is one for which I have either:

- a) obtained some form of publicly available documentation (newspaper ads, articles, programs, etc.) listing the date of the show, the location, and at least some information about who was scheduled to appear; or
- b) found a listing for the card from a respectable source and made sure it passed the ‘sniff test’

Usually, we have the full card but there are rare occasions where we only know some of the matches, or only know what wrestlers are scheduled to appear. This Almanac does include listings for 6 house shows in Hereford where no matches were advertised in the paper, just the fact that there was a show. I included them to best show how frequently the town was run.

Unless otherwise noted, all of the house show listings in this Almanac come from my original research.

DATA SOURCES

There are three subscription-based websites that have newspaper archives:

1. Newspapers.com
2. Newspaperarchive.com
3. Genealogybank.com

Another site, theancestorphunt.com, contains links to various other online resources. For this territory, The Portal to Texas History (<https://texashistory.unt.edu>) was also useful.

Of the 410 house shows listed in this Almanac, 408 of them come from one of the above sources. A small number of match results in the “Top 5 Feuds” section came from wrestlingdata.com and/or The Clawmaster’s Archives (<http://sportsandwrestling.mywowbb.com/forum2/>)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are a number of people who were of direct assistance in the preparation of this Almanac or other projects of mine. There were also many others who indirectly helped or inspired me over the years. I have listed these individuals below (in alphabetical order).

David Baker, David Bixenspan, Jon Boucher, Dick Bourne, David Chappell, Jim Cornette, Mason Creager, Mark Eastridge, Matt Farmer, Larry Goodman, Dylan Hales, Randy Hales, Chris Harrington, Brian Hildebrand, Tim Hornbaker, Beau James, Mark James, Brian Last, Jess McGrath, Greg Mosorjak, Brian Ockman, Dan Parris, Barry Rose, Rich Tate, Scott Teal, Brandon Thurston, Bobby Vankavelaar, Kris Zellner, and “The Clawmaster” James Zordani.

In addition to the above, I also want to credit the work of Ashley Parrish on Kayfabe Memories (kayfabememories.com). Some of the information in the “About the Territory” section of this Almanac came directly from Ashley’s posts on that site.
