aquaflow™ edition Shower Valves

Which shower valve to select...

Shower valves offer two functions: they control the flow of your water and the desired temperature.

- Mixer valves mix the hot and cold water flow. The temperature depends on how far you turn the knob or lever.
- Thermostatic valves automatically regulate your temperature, keeping it consistent if water is being used elsewhere in your property.

1-Way Showers

1-way shower valves connect water to a single shower outlet, usually an overhead shower head or slide rail. All of our 1-way valves feature a single handle that controls both the water flow and temperature.

2-Way Showers

2-way shower valves come with two controls, making it possible to operate two shower functions at separate times. The bottom control turns the water on and off, while managing the temperature. The top acts as a diverter, switching water from one outlet to the other.

3-Way Showers

3-way shower valves connect three outlets - e.g. a shower head, handset and a valve-operated bath tap. Each outlet operates on its own and is either managed through its own handle, or by a bottom control like on 2-way valves. The only difference is you turn the diverter to the left or right to switch to the other two outlets.

1-Way Showers

Our 1-way thermostatic valves are managed with two controls. They still supply a single outlet, but one handle operates the temperature, while the other offers better flow management. All valves are fitted with an anti-scald shut-off device — keeping you safe in the event of no cold water.

Do you need to install a shower pump?

Only low pressure gravity-fed water systems can be pumped. The flow rate you are currently getting from your water system, combined with the number and type of installations you have in your property, will determine what kind of pump you require.

Check with your installer that the cold water storage tank and hot water cylinder are big enough (as the hot water may run out) before purchasing a pump.

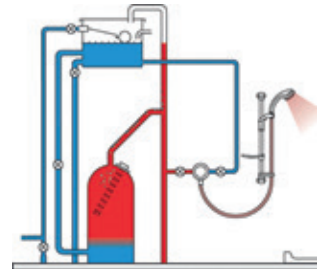

All Frontline Deluge shower pumps are fitted with 22mm stainless steel braided hoses and anti-vibration feet.

Low pressure gravity-fed system

This is the most common domestic water system. The system consists of a cold water tank (or cistern) usually situated in your loft and a hot water tank (or cylinder) that is normally in your airing cupboard. It's called a low pressure gravity system because the water is kept under pressure via the gravity-fed water delivered from the cistern.

How much pressure is produced is determined by the height at which the base of the cold water cistern is situated above the outlet. This is typically a minimum height of 1 metre for showers. The greater the height of the cistern above the showerhead the more pressure is created.

If you have this kind of system you can install a mixer, pumped digital or all-in-one power shower and you will have a great showering experience. If you decide on a mixer and want a more forceful shower, fitting a pump will boost the flow rate and pressure even more.
