DESCRIPTION OF DOG BREEDS-

The Anatolian Shepherd Dog is a breed of dog that originated in the Anatolia region of central Turkey. It is rugged, large, and very strong, with good sight and hearing that allows it to protect livestock. With its high speed and agility, it is able to run down a predator with great efficiency. It was imported as a guard dog for livestock, people, and property. It is very intelligent and an independent thinker. It requires minimal discipline but may need to be occasionally corrected as a puppy. It learns quickly. The Anatolian Shepherd was developed to be independent and forceful, responsible for guarding its master's flocks without human assistance or direction. Owners of dogs of this breed must socialize the dogs as puppies to turn them into appropriate companions. The Anatolian Shepherd Dog is very loyal and can be fiercely possessive and protective of its family, stock, and territory. The Anatolian is also a bold, balanced, and confident dog that does not become overstimulated easily. This breed is extremely diverse and is now used for PTSD, ADA, guide dogs for the blind or impaired, and children with disabilities like Aspergers.

The Bloodhound is a large, friendly, independent, and inquisitive breed. The Bloodhound is a large scent-hound, originally bred for hunting deer, wild boar and, since the Middle Ages, for tracking people. This breed is gentle, and is tireless when following a scent. Because of its strong tracking instinct, it can be willful and somewhat difficult to obedience train and handle on a leash. Bloodhounds have an affectionate and even-tempered nature with humans, making them excellent family pets.

“Not everyone needs a Catahoula.”

— NALC’s Motto

The Louisiana Catahoula Leopard Dog is the only breed of dog which historically originated in the State of Louisiana. On July 9, 1979, then Gov. Edwin Edwards signed a Bill into Law which was passed by the Louisiana Legislature making The Louisiana Catahoula Leopard Dog, The Official State Dog of Louisiana. These dogs are descendants of WAR DOGS.

The Catahoula Leopard Dog is a medium-large, short-coated dog, known for its many varied coat and eye colors and patterns. The word Catahoula is of Choctaw origin and is translated to mean “sacred lake.”

The breed requires firm guidance and early socialization, as they can be independent, territorial, and protective. For the same reasons, they do not allow mistreatment and will assert themselves in self-defense. Once they know their place in the family unit, they are affectionate, loyal, and gentle. Also called the Catahoula Hog Dog, they are used as stock dogs, bay dogs, tree dogs, watchdogs, guard dogs, and of course as loyal companions.

Owners of dogs of this breed must socialize the dogs as puppies to turn them into appropriate companions. THIS BREED HAS A SINGLE SHORT COAT AND CANNOT TOLERATE COLD WEATHER. THESE DOGS LOVE "THEIR PEOPLE" AND DO NOT TOLERATE BEING LEFT ALONE FOR LONG PERIODS OF TIME. IF LEFT ALONE WITHOUT PROPER CRATE TRAINING, THEY MAY BARK CONSTANTLY AND EASILY DESTROY THINGS (INCLUDING EATING THROUGH WALLS, DOG HOUSES, AND FURNITURE). They can easily jump & climb 4 + feet, clearing fences. They are extremely loyal and will defend their people and property, especially against predators.

"The Catahoula will not let you forget that you own a dog." The Louisiana Catahoula Leopard Dog, often called "King of the Stock Dogs," really belongs on a farm or ranch, for he is a serious worker who goes about his business with tremendous focus and assertiveness. This athletic, rugged dog requires at least an hour of running exercise each day. Without sufficient outlets for his high energy, he will become rambunctious and destructive. Most Catahoula Leopard Dogs are reserved with strangers and naturally protective.

Skittishness and sharpness can be problems in some lines, and Catahoulas need extensive socialization. He can be dominant and pushy with other animals, especially with other dogs of the same sex, and doesn't always cohabit well in multi-pet homes. He can be possessive of his food & toys. Catahoula Leopard Dogs are independent and like to be in charge. You must be a confident leader or they will walk all over you. Overall, this is a capable, versatile companion when allowed to fulfill his working heritage. Otherwise, he may not be happy and can be too much dog to handle."

“Catahoula leopard dogs were bred for work, so they need a lot of exercise. Some problems with the breed start right there: Their owners don't comprehend the tremendous need for stimulation these dogs require.”
