I WORK IN THE ADULT LEARNER SPACE

I spent 15 years building systems where adult learners thrive. Now I'm sharing their stories.

I know because I'm a
"comebacker" too

THE EDUCATION COMEBACKER STORY PROJECT

Bridgett Strickler, a nationally recognized adult learner champion, is elevating the individual voices of adult learners. She is seeking conversations for storytelling, research, and book publication. She believes there's something deeply empowering about individuals telling their own stories of making a comeback to education by returning to learning. These stories don't just celebrate courage, they inspire others who may dream of completing their GED, college degree, advanced degree, or another credential but haven't yet taken the leap.

Together, these stories, and the qualitative research derived from them, can shape programs and policies that truly meet learners where they are and support their perseverance, completion and long term success.
