About the French Quarter Jazz Fest

This festival has charmed New Orleanians since it first began in 1984. Stages are set up at every corner, food from the city's finest restaurants fill booths in Jackson Square and beyond. This grand fete has evolved into something everyone adores. This city's finest music and cuisine are on hand to celebrate life and love in the French Quarter.

Music! Over 23 stages take over the French Quarter throughout the three-day weekend, starting early in the day and going on through the night. Festival goers will hear jazz, Latin, R&B, zydeco, New Orleans funk, swing and rock throughout the Quarter.

Look for more than 2,000 artists – that's 250 acts of New Orleans' favorite musical performers to entertain—with a whole raft of other New Orleans legends and all-stars.

Bring your appetite to enjoy the festival's culinary lineup with booths in Woldenberg Riverfront Park, Jackson Square, Jax Brewery Parking Lot, and the Jazz Museum at the Mint ~ a tantalizing spread of beverages and specialty items from some of the best known restaurants in the Crescent City. Sample Pat O'Brien's Hurricanes, Barbecue Oysters from Red Fish Grill, Prime Rib Po-boy from the Rib Room, Baked Alaska from Antoine's, Shrimp Remoulade from Galatoire's and Oysters Rockefeller from Desire Oyster Bar. You can't try all the restaurants individually during one trip to New Orleans, but you can try a lot of them during this weekend. There's jambalaya, blackened catfish po-boys, crawfish étouffée, Cajun meat pies, deep fried cupcakes, white chocolate bread pudding and more.

Preservation Hall

Protect, preserve and perpetuate the musical and cultural traditions of New Orleans.

“Preservation Hall means many things to many people: veteran New Orleans jazzmen blowing their hearts out every night in a creaky room in the French Quarter; bands of these doughty pioneers constantly touring the world; a steady championing of the original style of the 20th century’s most distinctive artform; old dreams exploding into fresh life...”

— William Carter, "Preservation Hall"

Since its founding in 1961, Preservation Hall has been dedicated to preserving New Orleans musical traditions. From its inception, founders Allan and Sandra Jaffe fostered a community of inclusion, committed to the preservation of New Orleans Jazz and to caring for elder musicians.
