A Critique of Famous Quotes

I'm sure someone is going to say, who am I to criticize Kissinger, a world famous intellectual. Well, I can say that he does not have a corner on all knowledge, nor is he always right. Being an evolution advocate, believing in a groundless "science", compared to self-evident supernatural creation, is not formidable opposition (erudition) for me to be concerned with.

Henry Kissinger, on the subject of "truth". "It is not a matter of "what is true", that counts, but a matter of "what is perceived to be true". Like evolution?

A classic contrary case is which is the truth: supernatural creation, or the fantasy of natural evolution? The categories being realism vs. conceptualism!. A scriptural example of the effect of Kissinger's philosophy is the biblical historical reference that, in a certain period, "There was no king (authority) in those days; every man did that which was right in his own eyes". Judges 21:25.

Not obligated to any equitable standards, or majority-imposed principled laws, the result is a lack of guidance and direction, leading to confusion, and probable anarchy and chaos, and ultimate civil (uncivil) destruction!

Kissinger's pronouncement is his own opinion or philosophy, of which he is the independent judge, or, as quoted above, "right in his own eyes." But, he has no right or license to speak authoritatively for others to follow his abnormal theories, or assumptions.

To me, Kissinger is either denying personal responsibility to determine and follow the natural dictates of the determinable truths of life, or he purposely and defiantly advocates the throwing off of intellectual and moral constraints in the conduct of personal and societal life. His haughty independence, and condescending, disdainful attitude toward others (lower class than elite), are evident characteristics!

His superiority complex, and unrestrained penchant to publically criticize others, is graphically stated in Kissinger's comment that, "Military men are just dumb, stupid animals to be used as pawns in foreign policy". Spoken in a similar vein of his statement that most of the world's people are "useless eaters" who he and his aberrant cronies would eliminate by a drastic plan of depopulation, which is contained in the futuristic UN Agenda 21 document.

An obvious ruthless exploiter, Kissinger has a typical megalomaniacal personality, which is characterized by a power and wealth driven ambition to forge a ruling role for himself, especially in the one-world government conspiracy, that has been a behind-the-scenes global control movement, existing since the 1700s, originating as the "Bavarian Illuminati", a surreptitiously organized, self-serving dominating elitist class.

Prominent names are, in England, Rothschild, and Churchill, and in America, David Rockefeller, and George H. W. Bush, plus many likeminded unpatriotic, scheming infiltrators among members of Congress and Senate, and other politicians, and those in the educational, business, media and other fields.

The nature of megalomaniacs is a relentless pre-occupation, that consumes their minds, in the pursuit of their obsessed goals in life, by which they run roughshod over whoever and whatever stands in their way.

Webster's Dictionary definition states that "megalomania" is 1 "A mental disorder, characterized by delusions of grandeur, wealth, power, etc. 2 a passion for, or for doing big things. 3 a tendency to exaggerate." Especially their own self-importance!

In brief, their mental predisposition causes a megalomaniac to be obsessed with the grandiose status of elitism, including autocratic control over lesser classes of people, and the means to acquire continued wealth and power--to accomplish their self-serving, utopian goals.

With their exclusive personalities, they are like a high-scale type of the cartoon character "PacMan", devouring whatever they encounter, with the desire to sustain their voracious appetites for wealth, and power, and ruling authority.

Another of Kissinger's arrogant judgments, is the remark that "The issues are too important to be left to the voters." In a republic form of government, which ours is, elected representatives are responsible to carry out the majority will of the citizens, and not usurp authority and act, or make decisions contrary to the constitutional rights of the people, whom the legislators, and senators are obligated to consult and serve, as committed loyal employees!

In reality, though, our government has been operating independent of the voters in many, or most instances! Which, of course, is the result of the same thing that drives the elitist ruler types, but to a lesser degree.

That is, with his own supernatural power (albeit a far distant second to God) the Devil, as biblically attested and explained, is carrying out his threat to "be like the most High (God)", by going about building his evil kingdom, and using his wiles and powers, always endeavoring to lure Christians away from faithfulness to God. Of which, he has been devastatingly effective, and successful, over the centuries since the early church period. But God always has a "remnant" who faithfully worship and serve Him! And His overall will and plans cannot be thwarted.

"For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places". Eph. 6:12. The saying that "nothing is done in a vacuum", certainly has permanent relevance.

Everything in life either honors and serves God, or follows and obeys, or benefits the purposes of Satan! The first, are the spiritual works of Christians, and the latter are the unspiritual, carnal works of natural, unregenerated man. Or, in basic, simple terms, the age-old conflict of good vs. evil. Life's actions do not sort out in any other way!
