

MEASURED GOLF

New Measured Golf Pod Learning Format

What is a learning pod?

A learning pod is a group of like-minded individuals that share a similar goal and embrace the learning journey together as a small cohesive group.

What is the goal of introducing pod learning at Measured Golf?

The goal of pod learning is to allow a small group of friends share the experience of learning golf together. The plan is to introduce overarching concepts to the pod, then identify how each member of the pod is unique within the concept. Information and cues shared with each individual member of the pod will be tailored specifically for that person to help them better understand how their swing fits into the general principles being learned. This will spur discussion and shared learning about how we all are uniquely suited to move a golf club through time and space.

What is the structure of the pod learning?

The pods will meet once a week at a predetermined time and will work with Michael for 90-minutes. The pods will cover all skills needed for the game of golf including long game, short game, putting, strategy, mindset, and specialty shots. All sessions will include access to Trackman 4 data as well as Smart2Move Dual 3D force plate data.

Interested in learning more?

If pod learning sounds like something you would like to invite your friends to try, or if you are interested in having the staff at Measured Golf find you a pod to join, please email Michael at michael@measuredgolf.com for more information.
