EVERY INVESTMENT OR TRADING STRATEGY INVOLVES SOME LEVEL OF FINANCIAL RISK.

The author of this Site cannot and will not provide financial advice. The author of this Site is not, nor does he represent himself to be, a registered investment advisor, broker, or dealer. Some of the information on this site involves highly sophisticated levels of investment complexity and may not be appropriate to an average investor. Investments in the securities markets, and especially in options and futures, are speculative and involve substantial risk. The information that we provide or that is derived from our website should not be a substitute for advice from an investment professional. We encourage you to obtain personal advice from your professional investment advisor and to make independent investigations before acting on the information that you obtain from the Company or derived from this website. THIS SITE

IS NOT A SUBSTITUTE FOR A QUALIFIED INVESTMENT ADVISOR. Only you can determine what level of risk is appropriate for you.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURE AND NOTES ON DERIVATIVES AND OPTIONS TRADING

- Options and Futures are leveraged products involve risk and are not suitable for all investors. Leverage can work against you as well as for you and the possibility exists that you could sustain a loss of some, all or more of your initial investment. Before deciding to trade or invest you should carefully consider your investment objectives, level of experience, and ability to tolerate risk
- Prior to buying or selling an option, an investor should read and understand the booklet "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options." You can access and download a copy of the booklet on The Options /Clearing Corporations'(OCC) website at <http://www.theocc.com/publications/risks/riskchap1.jsp>
- Prior to buying or selling a future, an investor should read and understand the booklet "Security Futures: An Introduction to Their Use and Risks." You can access and download a copy of the booklet at the National Futures Association website at http://www.nfa.futures.org/investor/security_futures/security_futures.pdf
- In order to trade strategies, the individual must have an account approved by a broker/dealer to the specific trading level deemed suitable for the level of experience and risk tolerance.
- Trading or investing whether on margin or otherwise carries a high level of risk and requires sound risk management skills. Sellers of uncovered calls or puts will be obligated to meet applicable margin requirements for certain option strategies.
- Strategies may involve buying and writing multiple options in combinations. Often such combination subjects the individual a level of complexity that poses hidden risks if not analyzed and managed appropriately. Simultaneously transacting option trades in combinations may be difficult and or impossible to execute. The individual must consider other factors, including but the limited to, strategy complexity, trading liquidity, trading platform integrity and market trading hour's accessibility.
- Options transactions have particular tax considerations. Seek and consult with a tax advisor specialized in this area of investments.
- Examples on the site will not include other costs such as margin interest, commissions and fees. Extensive multiple transactions may incur excessive costs.
- Depending on your options positions in conjunction to other investment combinations, sudden adverse change in market conditions may subject you the risk of forced liquidations by the investment institution holding your positions.
- Options pricing is contingent to a number of factors, including but not limited to, wide bid ask spreads, volatility and volatility premiums, trading liquidity, etc., exposing investors to adverse pricing disadvantages and trade execution risks.
