

The New York Times

OFF THE MENU

A Parisian Brasserie With a Global Footprint Sets Up Shop in TriBeCa

A Ukrainian restaurant in the former Pegu Club space, a new look for the restaurant in Scandinavia House and more news.

Opening

Mostrador NYC

The Argentine chef Fernando Trocca has restaurants in Buenos Aires; London; José Ignacio, Uruguay; and an outpost in Montauk, N.Y. Now, he has set up shop in Manhattan with the restaurateur Martin Pittaluga. The menu is rooted in Argentina, with specialties like alfajores cookies and medialuna pastries, and when dinner starts next month, grass-fed beef asado and milanesas. But it branches into Uruguay and Lebanon, where Mr. Trocca has worked. Mostrador means “counter” in Spanish, and the signature is a counter displaying many of the dishes. The 45-seat restaurant is in the Walker Tribeca Hotel tucked into Cortlandt Alley.

28 Cortlandt Alley (Walker Street), mostradornyc.com.