tcsh (/tiːˈsiːʃɛl/ “tee-see-shell”, /tiːʃɛl/ “tee-shell”, or as “tee see ess aitch”, tcsh) is a Unix shell based on and backward compatible with the C shell (csh).

Shell

It is essentially the C shell with programmable command-line completion, command-line editing, and a few other features. Unlike the other common shells, functions cannot be defined in a tcsh script and the user must use aliases instead (as in csh). It is the native root shell for some BSD-based systems, including FreeBSD 12 and earlier, FreeBSD 14 and later, and

What Is clrscr() in C? Clearing the Console and Screen in C

Clear the screen in C language in just 3 easy steps

The clrscr() function was used to clear the MS-DOS console screen in older C compilers like Turbo C and Turbo C++. clrscr() is not a standard C function—if you try to compile a program that includes clrscr() in a modern compiler like GCC or Clang, you'll get an error that says "function not declared" or "not declared in this scope."

So what if you need to clear the console in your program? This wikiHow article will teach you how to replace clrscr() with the system() function to clear the screen in C.

```
1 #include<stdio.h>
2 #include<stdlib.h>
3 void main() {
4     FILE *f;
5     char s;
6     system("clear");
7     f=fopen("new.txt","r");
8     while((s=fgetc(f))!=EOF) {
9         printf("%c",s);
10    }
11    fclose(f);
12    getch();
13 }
```

```
2 #include<stdlib.h>
3 void main() {
4     FILE *f;
5     char s;
6     clrscr();
7     f=fopen("new.txt","r");
8     while((s=fgetc(f))!=EOF) {
9         printf("%c",s);
10    }
11    fclose(f);
12    getch();
13 }
```

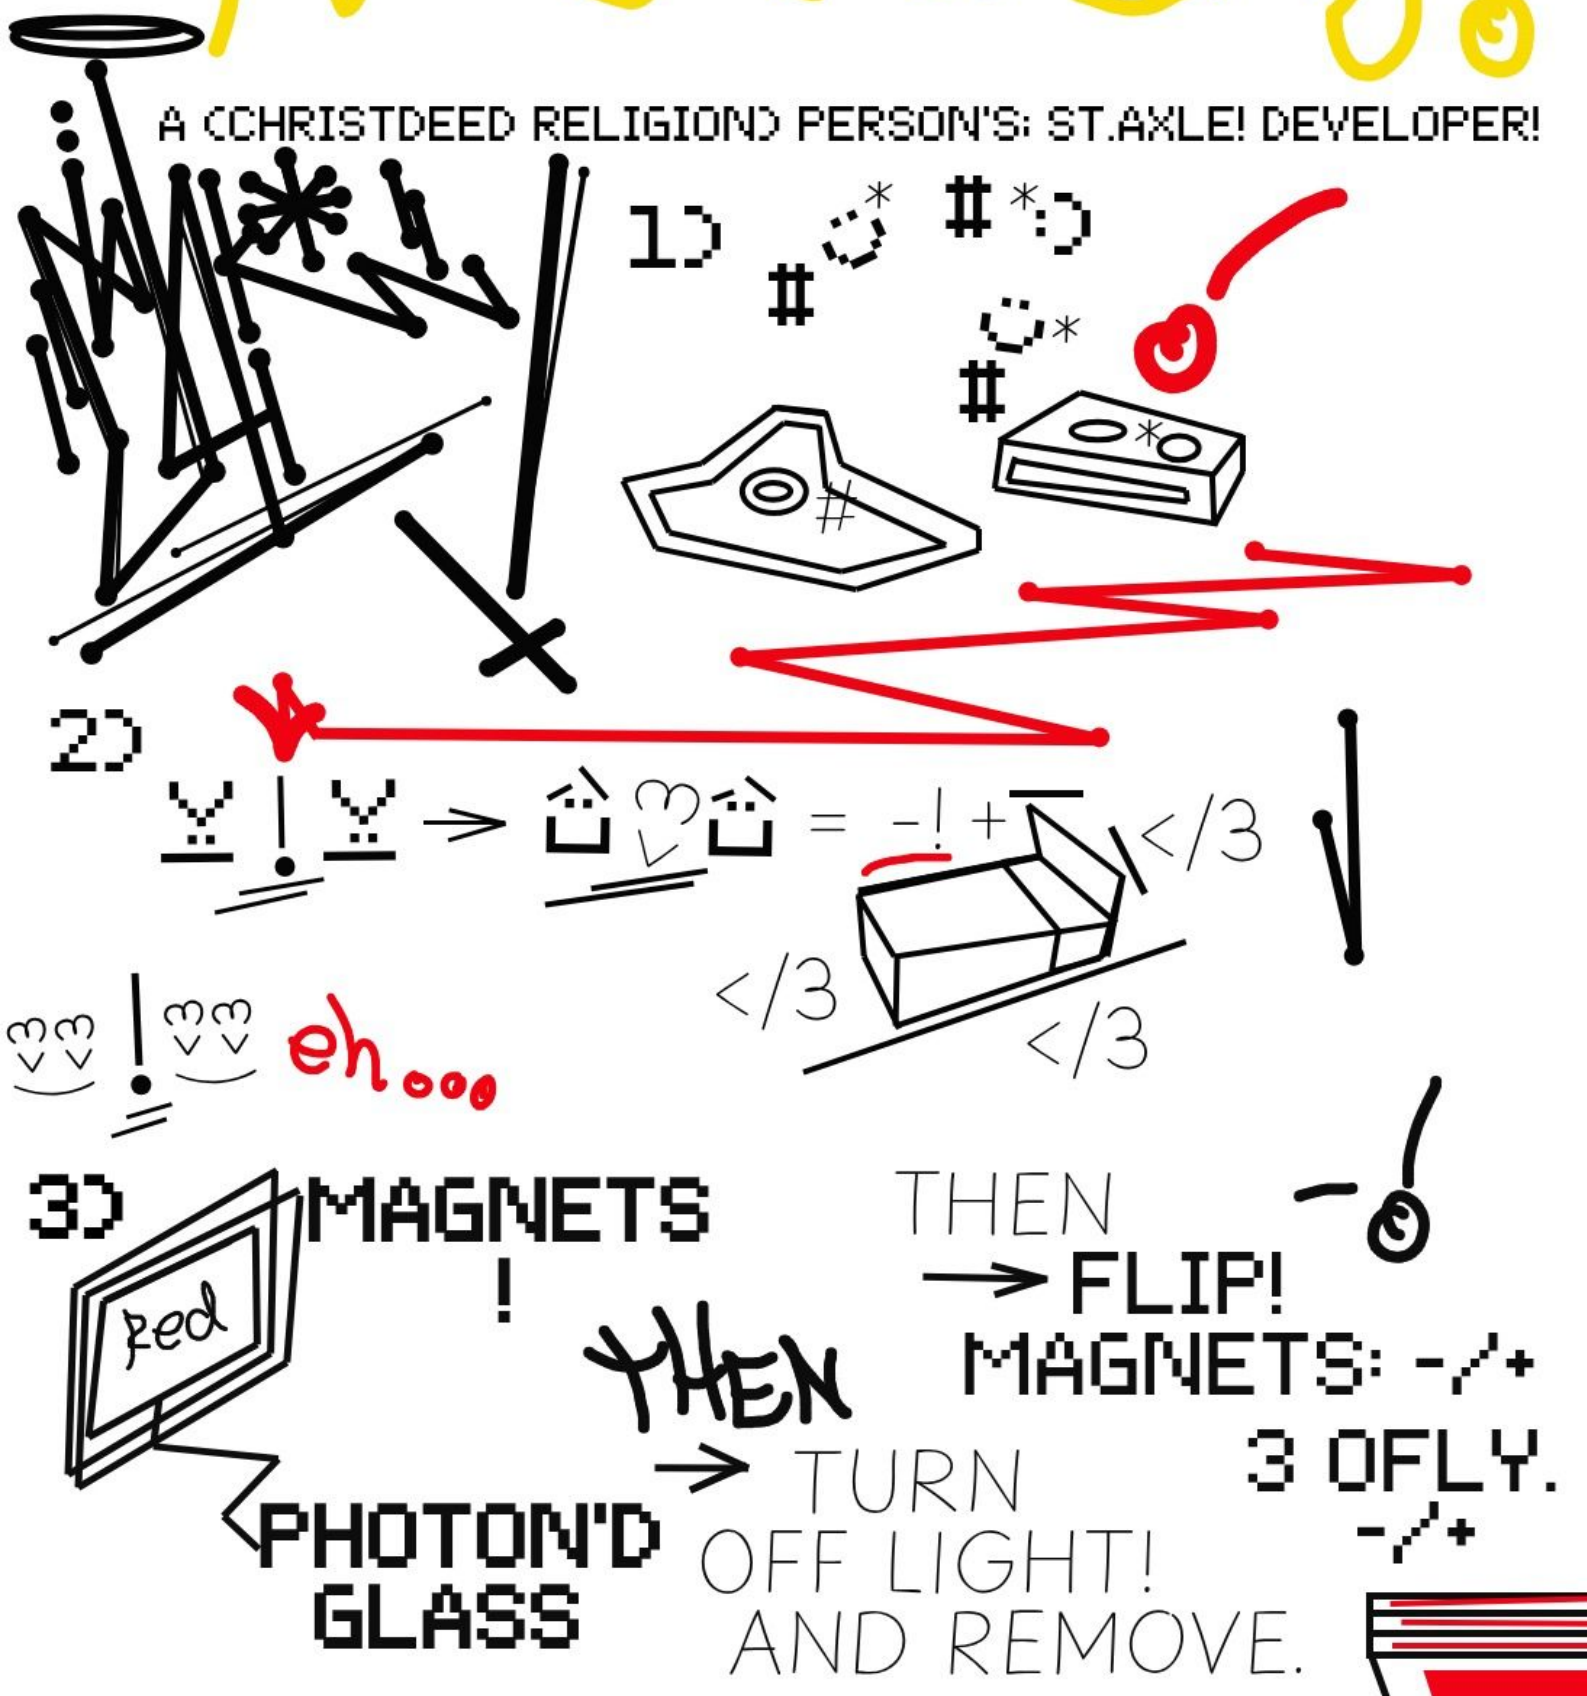

OUTDATED?

```
4 FILE *f;
5 char s;
6 system("cls");
7 f=fopen("new.txt","r");
8 while((s=fgetc(f))!=EOF) {
9     printf("%c",s);
10 }
11 fclose(f);
12 getch();

Under the previous Administration, RD established three key priorities that were made public and incorporated into program activities. The RD Key Priorities were incorporated into funding notices in the following manner. First, a general reference to the Administration's key priorities was included in the introductory section of most RD funding notices.

The previous Administration's RD Key Priorities for discretionary points were generally:

(c) Reducing climate pollution and increasing resilience to the impacts of climate change through economic support to rural communities. Using the Disadvantaged Community and Energy Community Look-Up Map (available at rd.usda.gov/priority-points), applicants would receive priority in one of the three ways:

■ If the project were located in or served an Energy Community as defined by the Inflation Reduction Act of 2022 (Pub. L. 117-169) (IRA); and

To compile and run a C program like `myprogram.c` from the command line, you need a C compiler installed on your system, such as GCC (GNU Compiler Collection).

Compilation:

- Open your terminal or command prompt.
- Navigate to the directory where `myprogram.c` is saved using the `cd` command. For example, if your file is in a folder called `my_c_programs` on your desktop, you would type:

Code

cd ~/Desktop/my_c_programs
```

- Compile the C source code using the compiler. The basic command for GCC is:

Code

```
gcc myprogram.c -o myprogram
```

This command compiles `myprogram.c` and creates an executable file named `myprogram` (on Linux/macOS) or `myprogram.exe` (on Windows). You can choose any desired name for the executable. If you omit the `-o` flag, the default executable name will be `a.out` (on Linux/macOS) or `a.exe` (on Windows).

Execution:

- After successful compilation, you can run the executable from the same terminal or command prompt.
- To run the program, type:

Code

```
./myprogram
```

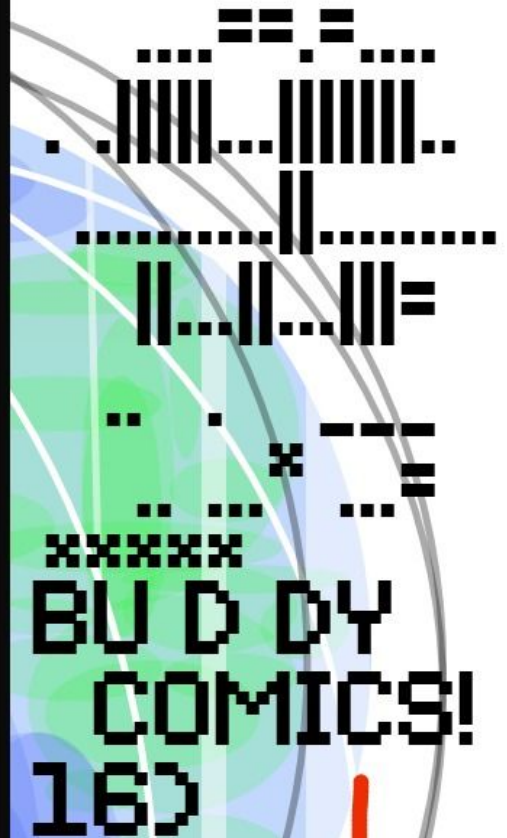

(On Windows, you might just type `myprogram` or `myprogram.exe`.)

This sequence of commands compiles your C code into an executable program and then runs that program.

 shervin • I'm very honored to formally be supporting His Imperial Highness Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi's and others' efforts to achieve a democracy and freedom movement for Iran. My birthplace, the homeland of my Persian brothers and sisters has been terrorized by the Islamic Regime for 45 years. My family and I escaped to America after surviving the Islamic Revolution and nightly bombings by Saddam Hussein. Like many in the Iranian diaspora, my brothers and sisters have spread around the world, but everywhere we go, we make important contributions to our new homelands and to the wider world. While we are free, we remain committed to the 88 million Iranians trapped in Iran, most of whom are young and deserve freedom and a brighter future.

We are no more special than our fellow Iranians trapped in Iran. Making Iran great again as a democracy is one of the most important things we can do for a more peaceful world. It would change not only the Middle East but the world.
