Newark, NJ – January 17, 2025 – The New Jersey Cannabis Club, a Latina-owned, minority-led micro dispensary, is kicking off the New Year with a historic victory. With the Newark City resolution officially granting approval to operate, New Jersey Cannabis Club is poised to redefine opportunity, representation, and innovation in the cannabis industry once state licensure is secured.

“This marks the start of an incredible new chapter for us,” said Rita Duran, founder and owner of New Jersey Cannabis Club. “This isn’t just our victory—it’s Newark’s, it’s Latinas’, it’s Women’s, and it’s every underrepresented voice breaking barriers in this industry. We’re ready to build a legacy that’s as bold and vibrant as the community we serve.”

Situated in the heart of Newark’s North Ward, New Jersey Cannabis Club is more than just a dispensary—it’s a movement. Focused on fostering education, empowerment, and access, New Jersey Cannabis Club aims to be a transformative force for progress in the cannabis space.

Scheduled to open its doors in Summer 2025, New Jersey Cannabis Club will provide adults aged 21 and over with premium cannabis products and an exceptional customer experience. The dispensary is committed to creating a space that celebrates community connections while setting a gold standard for what minority-owned businesses can achieve.

“This approval isn’t just a milestone,” Duran continued, “it’s the spark of a new era for Newark’s cannabis landscape. We’re building something that represents the strength and creativity of our city while paving the way for future entrepreneurs in the industry.”

As New Jersey Cannabis Club prepares for its grand opening, the team invites the community to join in the excitement and witness the growth of a dispensary that’s rewriting the narrative of possibility.
