Sarah Anne Minkin, PhD, is the Director of Programs and Partnerships at the Foundation for Middle East Peace. She co-founded the Palestinian Voices Study Group, a program that guides Jews through rigorous engagement with Palestinian texts in order to understand Palestinian perspectives, experiment with centering Palestinian voices, and practice radical empathy while confronting anti-Palestinian racism in Jewish communities. Sarah Anne earned her PhD in Sociology from the University of California, Berkeley for research focusing on the sociology of emotion, nationalism, and Jewish Americans' relationships with Israel/Palestine.
