

MEET ROSALYN ANDERSON-HOWELL

Rosalyn Anderson-Howell is an educator with over twenty-five years of experience in secondary and higher education. During her professional career, she has worked as a classroom teacher, curriculum writer, academic advisor and administrator of college success and retention initiatives.

Rosalyn earned her undergraduate degrees at the University of Washington in American Ethnic History and Psychology, and earned her Master's degree in Secondary Education from The Ohio State University. Her current doctoral research (Frostburg State University) explores issues of structural inequality, social justice and advocacy in higher education.

Rosalyn is passionate about youth leadership development and expanding access to pre-college enrichment opportunities for historically underserved populations. She is a mother of three children and currently resides in Prince George's County, Maryland.

