BIO

Chris began his behavioral healthcare career in 1996, where he developed passion for healing work and creating community change. He has worked for several community-based organizations in a number of capacities. He actively participates in local, regional, and state-wide initiatives that focus on helping those most vulnerable in our communities. Chris is also proud to be a member of several nonprofit advisory boards and committees. He currently facilitates leadership support groups for CEOs. Chris maintains a full-time independent private practice in Fort Lauderdale, where he offers psychotherapy, coaching, consulting, and clinical supervision.
