ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATION CONSENT FORM

In previous years we have received requests to send tax returns to third parties. IRS regulations prevent us from sending tax returns without prior authorization. We could only provide you with a copy of the return or have you complete Form 7216 (Third Party Disclosure Consent), which allows us to send the return to the third party. We now offer a way to send your returns to you through email.

The Electronic Communication Consent Form is designed to collect information from you, which can allow us to communicate and handle requests for your tax return. The form has two sections. The first section is used to send correspondence and the tax return to your provided email address. The second section is used to provide you cell phone number which can allow us to send limited messages to you. This form has two purposes; one purpose is to communicate with you through electronic measures and the second purpose is to allow us to send copies of your tax material and returns to you.

The email option is used to send a PDF of your tax return directly to your provided email address. You then can send the return to anyone that needs a copy. The return normally will be sent without file encryption. You may request the file to be encrypted. This password would need to be provided to anyone requesting the return.

The texting option is used to communicate the status of your tax return. If you like we can send information about your refund. To grant us this option we will need your cell phone number and provider. If you decide to use the texting option, we can only send limited information. Complex questions should still be discussed over the telephone or in person. You must respond to any communications with the password you provided on the form.
