

Tesla's Final Days !

Will 2019 end with Elon Musk and Elizabeth Holmes getting back on the cover of INC for new reasons this time.? These two individuals seem almost the same, as they are both not trustworthy. They both have great ideas but do the numbers make sense. Can he make cars and turn a profit?

I say no, as do many other intelligent people.

It seems both Elon and Elizabeth have the right people behind them with money and then took ideas that everybody wanted to believe.

In Elon's case, the math does not add up. While Tesla cars work, if you can't build them and make a profit, then they don't work either. Will they work in cold weather is a whole issue on its own. Have you seen how your Cell-phone works on cold days? What happens when you're going down the highway at 70, and your car shuts off? This issue gets scary real fast as it has too many people already.

While I do see them in the northeast, they are usually on a flatbed truck going to get fixed which must cost a lot. Reports show it is one of the most expensive cars to get fixed if you can even find a dealer to do it.

His latest announcement of his new car last month, I bet, it will never be built or sold. He will be out of business by years end, and he will blame the government. That's why he wants to get thrown out of the company so that he can blame others for the downfall. I have no idea where the semi truck is and why he would not have made a pickup truck before the semi truck. The bottom line is the numbers don't add up, he will run out of money soon or the SEC will ban him from the company soon. Eventually when Elon is gone the company will file for bankruptcy, is my bet!

The list of stupid things he has done the past year is so alarming including smoking pot and drinking on a podcast!

Also saying, "funding secured at $420 a share" really? Assuming he is so tired now, that the last year has felt like five years in one. Yes, that happens to most people who run their own company at some point, grow up. You had to say that, and he could barely look at the camera. The similarities between Elon and Elizabeth are so striking. Who does not see this, it is clear as day. The fact that Holmes is not in jail does not mean that she may not go there soon and the fact that Elon does not either give us hope one day they maybe will get married on the last season of Orange is the New Black.

The list of smart short-sellers is endless in this case, and while it didn't work with many names the past few years like Herbalife and Wayfair, I think, Tesla, they will be proven 100% right this year. The number one sign of massive fraud is top people leaving, over and over, and here at Tesla, you have that in spades.

They just even raised more money but on not such good terms.

This new money will be the last and the end is near I feel.

Cars are burning, cash is burning, and accounting issues are coming up. Look at Space X, I have no idea if they make money, but I know Lockheed Martin (LMT) back in the early seventies had the technology to return rockets, but the costs did not make sense. Maybe the costs today make more sense, but the car company cannot make money unless they raise the prices. Today that does not seem possible in our market. Elon lowering the costs on them now shows the demand is fragile. Probably because the quality is starting to drop off and there is nothing worse than a Lemon in the Car Industry.

Then Elon said he was closing all the stores last week only to reverse that statement a few days later. Also what is happening day in and day out, people coming and going, TOP people, is just crazy. The costs to produce a car at scale are huge, and if he gets one major recall, that could be the end of Tesla. The car is really for the west and south. Good luck driving that car in upstate NY in the winter, that's a whole different subject.

While the story has held up much longer than most people ever thought, many brilliant people have been "short " this stock a long time. Their day is coming soon, and I hope they all make enormous rewards for pointing this fraud out. Hopefully, other companies make a profit on their cars, as this is good for the environment. Although what Happens to all those batteries, once they go bad? That is a significant issue that no one talks about.

With all the crazy stories that go on about Tesla is alone a reason to stay away. Why would you go along with something so risky? Making a profit is the only factor you need to think about. Stay away if you don't want to "short" it. We say "short" this stock nine ways to Sunday with play money or real money starting now!

I am still looking for a wedding by the end of 2019!

Douglas Hughes