

At the age of 16, Devin took a high-school art class where he created his first sculpture in bronze, which led to the discovery of his unique talent. That first sculpture sold in an art gallery the same year, and it was the catalyst for what has become a successful full-time sculpting career.

His love and appreciation of nature kept him focused on more realistic interpretations of what nature has to offer. Devin believes that if you are creating a scene from nature, your representation should honor the subject and capture every detail of its beauty.
