

Score FREE Chicken and Golf for a Year!

Many have tried, but none can match the Colonel's special blend of 11 herbs and spices. Even after all these years, Kentucky Fried Chicken's original recipe remains an international treasure and a well-kept secret. It's a finger-lickin' mystery in a bucket if there ever was one.

In the Colonel's experience, the only thing better than a 12-piece bucket of his chicken is a 16-piece one! The third best buckets, according to Colonel, are sold right next door at Peninsula Golf Center. It's a simple, but effective recipe after all. A bunch of golf balls, plus a wide open field, equals a good ol' time. And there's nothing better for the golfers at PGC when the mouthwatering smell of crispy, fried chicken travels from the red and white restaurant over to the practice mats. That sorta thing is enough to make any hungry golfer wonder...

At the driving range, 70 golf balls come in a large bucket and 40 in a small one,
But how many golf balls could a bucket from KFC hold?

As it stands, the exact number is unknown—much like KFC's original recipe. So, we want YOU to take a swing at it! We're filling up one of our patented KFC buckets with golf balls, and until August 12th, golfers and chicken lovers from all over the peninsula will make their guesses as to how many range balls are in the bucket. This golf ball and fried chicken experiment will end with a Facebook livestream tallying the total number of golf balls! 12 winners with the closest guesses will receive 12 vouchers, each good for a FREE bucket of KFC or a FREE bucket at PGC. To submit your guess, make a Facebook post with the hashtag, #PlayItWhereItFries!
