WHAT MAKES A SUCCESSFUL DISTANCE LEARNING STUDENT?

The distance learning student possesses unique qualities which consist primarily of working people who are trying to better their future and opportunity. This however is changing, as more people are becoming aware of the benefits and freedom distance learning can give. The traditional school will never go away, however, corporations are using the distance learning to train technical professionals while private and public universities redefine the world as their markets. The market for the online learning is expanding rapidly.

IN GENERAL, THE DISTANCE LEARNING STUDENT SHOULD POSSESS THE FOLLOWING QUALITIES:

1. Be able to communicate through writing.

Most communication is written, so it is critical that students feel comfortable in expressing themselves in writing. Many students have limited writing abilities, which should be addressed before or as part of the distance learning experience. This may require remedial efforts on the part of the student.

2. Be Self-motivated and self-disciplined.

With the freedom and flexibility of the distance learning environment comes responsibility. The distance learning process takes a real commitment and discipline to keep up with the flow of the process.

3. Be willing to "speak up" if problems arise.

Many of the non-verbal communication mechanisms that instructors use in determining whether students are having problems (confusion, frustration, boredom, absence, etc.) are not possible in the distance learning paradigm. If a student is experiencing difficulty on any level (either with the technology or with the course content), he or she must communicate this immediately to the facilitator.

4. Be willing and able to commit to 8 to 10 hours per week.

The distance learning is not easier than the traditional educational process. In fact, many students will say it requires much more effort and commitment.

5. Be able to meet the minimum requirements for the courses.

The requirements for the distance learning are no less than that of any other quality educational program. The successful student will view the distance learning as a convenient way to receive their education – not an easier way.

6. Accept critical thinking and decision making as part of the learning process.

The learning process requires the student to make decisions based on facts as well as experience. Assimilating information and executing the right decisions requires critical thought; case analysis, case studies and practical procedures does this very effectively.

7. Have access to a computer, scanner, webcam and a modem.

The communication medium is a computer, phone line, and modem; the student must have access to the necessary equipment.

8. Be able to think ideas through before responding.

Meaningful and quality input is an essential part of the learning process. Time is given in the process to allow for the careful consideration of responses. The testing and challenging of ideas is encouraged; you will not always be right, just be prepared to accept a challenge.

9. Feel that high quality learning can take place without going to a traditional classroom.

If the student feels that a traditional classroom is a prerequisite to learning, they may be more comfortable in the traditional classroom. Distance learning is not for everybody. A student that wants to be on a traditional campus attending a traditional classroom is probably not going to be happy with the distance learning. While the level of social interaction can be very high in the virtual classroom given that many barriers come down in the distance learning format, it is not the same as living in a dorm on a campus. This should be made known.

The distance learning process requires commitment on the student's part. Basically, the student needs to want to be there, and needs to want the experience. The instructor may have to contact students personally to offer assistance and remind the student of the need to keep up. Just as many excellent instructors may not be effective distance learning facilitators, not all students possess the necessary qualities to perform well with the distance learning.

10. Is the Aglaia Esthetics online program for you? It is if you:

- Like to work with the public.
- Enjoy working with skin care and cosmetic products.
- Have an interest in performing esthetics services or technical procedures.
- Are committed to life-long learning in this rapidly evolving field.

- Feel comfortable promoting and selling products to customers.
