MANAGING CANCER-RELATED AFRO HAIR LOSS

www.caringforhair.org/c-and-hair

CANCER-RELATED HAIR LOSS

- » Some people experience hair loss as a side-effect of chemotherapy. In many cases, this is temporary and the hair will usually grow back once treatment has stopped.
- » Hair loss can also occur with radiotherapy but it only happens in the area where the cancer is being treated.

AFRO-TEXTURED HAIR

Hair is diverse, comes in different textures, and is categorised by a hair typing system ranging from straight hair to very curly hair. We understand the culture and particular needs of afro-textured hair in regards to hair characteristics, hair styling and hair care practices which individuals may want to discuss prior to cancer treatment, during treatment or post-treatment.

HAIR TYPES

WHO WE ARE

C & Hair is a service that recognises not only the medical implications of treating cancer, but also the social and psychological impact of cancer-related hair loss that many may experience. It is a support network to assist people going through what may be one of the most challenging periods of their life.

C & Hair is run by Certified Trichologist, Lorna Jones who is a member of the International Association of Trichologists.

She runs training courses on Hair Loss and the Science of Hair and has extensive experience in managing hair loss in all hair types.
