

Philosophy for Schools Online Summer Camp 2024

Every Friday in August

Are you interested in exploring the BIG questions with other young people from all over the UK? Would you like to develop your thinking skills and learn about the ideas of history's greatest philosophers? If so, apply to attend the Philosophy for Schools Online Summer Camp 2024, taking place every Friday during August. There will be two groups, one for those in Y7-9 (10-12pm) and a second for those in Y10-13 (1-3pm). Places are limited to 15 in each group.

Previous attendee feedback:

"Thank you so much for making philosophy interesting and fun - I've really enjoyed debating question I'd never thought about before, and it's helped improve my confidence too :)"

"I felt that the combination of worksheets, videos and interactive sessions gave the course a good and even balance, that meant everything was easy to understand, yet you still felt challenged and were constantly extending your knowledge."

- Weekly 'campfire' discussions
- Interactive videos
- Activity worksheets
- Philosophy projects, games, puzzles & prizes
- Thinking survival skills, short story & art competitions + much more!
- Sessions are led by Royal Institute of Philosophy tutor & Thinker CIC director, Glenn Skelhorn

APPLY
NOW

e-mail schools@royalinstitutephilosophy.org for further information