ABOUT US

Led by 4th generation co-guardians, Fred, Alain and Pascal Mouawad, and backed by more than a century of excellence in its field, Mouawad remains a family business built upon artistic excellence, superb craftsmanship, trust and relationships.

Mouawad designs, manufactures and sells its own exclusive jewellery and timepiece collections ranging from boutique items to objects of art and magnificent haute joaillerie masterpieces.

The Mouawad brand has penetrated continents across the world, while retaining its eminent position as jewelers to royalty, high society, celebrities and those that appreciate the finest standards of dazzling craftsmanship.

In addition to its jewelry and timepiece design and production, Mouawad also sources its own rough diamonds as a Diamond Trading Company (DTC) Sightholder through its joint venture company, Premier Diamond Alliance.

Besides crafting fine jewelry, over the years the Mouawad family has acquired some of the largest and rarest diamonds in the world and many of these historic gems carry Mouawad as part of their designated name.

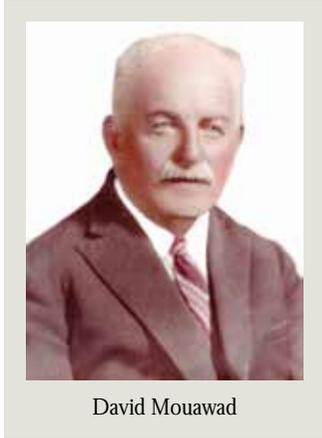

The family's on-going support of the global industry through research and education led to third generation Robert Mouawad receiving a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Gemological Institute of America (GIA) and of having the GIA campus named in his honor.

Mouawad has been honored by the Guinness World Records four times with their most recent award for the Mouawad L'Incomparable Diamond Necklace—the most valuable necklace in the world ($55M).

The Mouawad vision is to continue the rich heritage of Mouawad by maintaining the focus on fine jewelry and watches while widening distribution through contemporary and accessible price points in order to increase the reach of the brand internationally.

THE MOUAWAD HERITAGE

The Mouawad legacy spans several generations and continents and is a story of innovation, artistic excellence, entrepreneurship and dedication to the growth and integrity of the jewelry industry.

David Mouawad

First generation: The birth of a tradition David Mouawad (1865-1951)

As a child David Mouawad would look out to sea from his home in the mountains of Lebanon. Although surrounded by the picturesque pine-studded forests of this Mediterranean country, he always felt that there was a destiny calling him beyond its shores. By the time he reached adulthood, he knew he could ignore the calling no more. Filled with the spirit of a pioneer, in 1883 David Mouawad set out from his homeland. Boarding a passenger sailboat, he said goodbye to his family and prepared himself for the long journey ahead. He was leaving behind a country in the first stages of a cultural awakening yet also simmering with political discontent. Ahead of him lay an arduous journey of several weeks, sometimes in high seas, but one that would carry him to a vibrant new world full of promise. Upon disembarking in the United States, he instinctively felt his journey was not over. Although the country fascinated him with its exotic modernity and urbanism, he knew his destiny still lay beyond. And so he boarded a boat to Mexico, a country where he would immerse himself in acquiring the craft of watchmaker, goldsmith and jeweler.

Days turned to months and then to years as he learned from the masters of the trade, spending hours absorbed in watching, acquiring and breathing a profession that beguiled him. More than two decades passed, yet thoughts of Lebanon never left his mind. It was 1908 when he finally decided the time was right to bring his craft back home. Once safely returned to Lebanon's capital, Beirut, David soon held the keys to his new workshop in his hand. From here he combined his day-to-day trade of watch and jewelry repairs with his deeper passion — creating magnificent and intricate clocks as well as fashioning one-of-a-kind pieces commissioned by wealthy clients.

Fayez Mouawad

Second generation: Jewelers to Kings Fayez Mouawad (1917-1990)

Growing up, Fayez Mouawad would watch his father David at work, painstakingly creating watches and jewelry that emerged as among the finest of their kind. As the young boy became a grown man, he felt at home in the family workshop and jewelry store, passing every waking hour indulging in his fascination for the craft. Like his father before him, Fayez demonstrated an innate talent for producing works that caught the eye of the country's elite. Innovation also ran deep in his veins - Fayez was one of the earliest jewelers to embellish watches with precious stones.

The marriage between the Mouawad family's two great loves - timepieces and jewels - earned him wide renown as a master in the field. Yet in his heart, there burned an ambition to carry the Mouawad fortunes to greater heights. This ambition would lead him almost a thousand miles away to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. In 1950 Fayez boarded a boat from the port of Beirut and set sail for new horizons. Ahead lay a country in the throes of an economic boom, a thought that filled Fayez with anticipation of what the future may hold. What he found on arrival was auspicious: He was the only fine jeweler in the Kingdom and one of the first to bring prestigious Western watches such as Piaget, Baume & Mercier, Longines, Patek Philippe and Rolex to its shores.

His exceptional work soon caught the eye and earned the patronage of the upper echelons of society, helping Fayez to build a strong network of connections and clientele. As jeweler to kings and the aristocracy, Fayez fashioned outstanding pieces and unique creations, often commemorating exceptional state events. Subsequently the name Mouawad became synonymous with exceptional craftsmanship bearing the finest jewels and precision skills.

Robert Mouawad

Third generation: Forging success in new markets

Robert Mouawad

Of Fayez's four sons, Robert was not the eldest, nor did he initially follow his brothers into the family firm. What he shared with his father, though, was passionate ambition. This took him to medical school in Paris, pursuing his dream to become a doctor. Yet, after two years, his father urged him to rejoin him in Saudi Arabia. Robert's deep family ties guided him in his decision to swap academia for working alongside his father and brothers. He began in the role of salesman, determined to learn the business from the ground up. As time progressed, and with Robert's other brothers having since married and left the country, he agreed on a deal with his father to take over the business as sole president. Robert had inherited the same extraordinary affinity for jewelry and watches as his father and grandfather before him, along with an innate pioneering, entrepreneurial spirit. From Saudi Arabia, Robert looked to new horizons, expanding the business in the early 1970s far beyond the original jewelry salon in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia and selecting Geneva as the company's new base.

Just as Robert's geographical ambitions took the business to new heights, so did his love of precious gems. In this respect, he was a visionary, taking risks at times when others were afraid to buy. His presence was instantly felt in any auction room; as he went on to acquire some of the world's largest diamonds at fantastic prices. In an industry that places the highest emphasis on trust, Robert Mouawad was able to earn respect for his word and secured his place in the history books as one of the diamond industry's biggest players.

Robert built the Mouawad brand in myriad ways. He broadened his knowledge through exhaustive research into art, craftsmanship and state-of-the-art technology. His tenure as CEO was characterized by company growth, expansion, and the family's permanent quest for perfection. Under his leadership, the Mouawad brand established a presence in Europe, Asia and North America. Through his dynamism, strength and commitment to the jewelry industry, Robert Mouawad led the family business to international acclaim.

Fourth generation: A Future of Innovation

Fred Mouawad Co-Guardian of Diamond Division

As a fourth generation member of the Mouawad family, Fred Mouawad inherited his father's and forefathers' entrepreneurial spirit. Raised in Geneva, Switzerland, Fred attended boarding school at College du Leman. He was fascinated by management from an early age and studied business throughout his career. He has a Business Administration degree from Pepperdine University, and is an alumnus of the Harvard Business School (MBA) and the Stanford Graduate School of Business (Executive Program). Fred is also a Graduate Gemologist from the Gemological Institute of America (GIA). His personal passion for gemstones led him to co-author articles in the field of gemology, and also trade gemstones on his own to finance his entrepreneurial activities.

In 1995, Fred founded a still-growing portfolio of companies under the umbrella of Synergia One, of which he is founder and chairman. Beyond the family business, his group operates in 12 countries across several industries including food service franchising, food manufacturing, interior construction, IT consulting, publishing, trade shows, and Software as a Service.

In 2012, he and his brothers decided to complete the vertical integration of Mouawad into a diamond manufacturer. Fred took the lead on this project. In a joint venture with New York's Premier Gems, the Premier Diamond Alliance was formed and the Mouawad Group became a DTC Sightholder.

In keeping with the family vision of contributing to their industry by supporting the construction of the GIA Campus in Carlsbad, Fred continued forging the way forward by creating two trade magazines 'INSTORE' and 'INDESIGN.' These high-end trade magazines provide insight to jewelers in America on how better to run their stores. The magazines have won over 50 awards and lead their field. Fred moved one step closer to achieving his vision when he established the 'SMART Jewelry Show,' a high-profile trade fair in Chicago focused on trade and education.

Fourth generation: A Future of Innovation

Alain Mouawad Co-Guardian of Watch Division

Alain Mouawad, fourth generation member of the Mouawad family, found a passion early on for horology and the luxury watch business. This passion coupled with his marketing expertise has driven Alain to make his mark in the timepiece industry, including his involvement in running luxury Swiss watch brand Robergé, launching his own collection of chronometers under the Blacksand brand, and now heading the Mouawad Watches Division.

Like brothers Fred and Pascal, Alain grew up in Geneva, Switzerland, and later pursued his education in the United States at Pepperdine University. In 1991, he returned to Geneva to further his education by pursuing a double major in marketing communications and sociology at Webster University.

Alain began his career at the award-winning Zurich Advertising Agency Heinz Heimann DMB&B before launching his own Pro-Mond SA Communication Agency to manage the marketing and communications for the Mouawad Watches Division.

As a life-long, avid collector of watches, Alain has a deep knowledge of horology that inspired him to develop a number of highly sophisticated watch mechanisms such as those found in the Blacksand collection. The chrono mono pusher (Blacksand Calibre 2002), which was developed in-house, offers a blend of tradition and modernity. The mechanism highlights the traditional column wheel, along with an unconventional approach to the global movement aesthetic with its personalized components. More complicated calibres will be launched in due time.

In creating the Blacksand collection, Alain wished to pay tribute to the know-how and tradition of Swiss watchmaking while offering a decidedly different product. The timepieces are created for a clientele of free-spirited connoisseurs—personalities for whom luxury symbolizes time that is chosen but never dictated by market-driven, status-enhancing conventions.

Today Alain is the Guardian of the Mouawad Watch Division and is responsible for the entire Manufacturing Division in Geneva and at Les Breuleux in the Swiss Alps, including after sales service, the Mouawad Watch Academy, and the marketing of timepieces worldwide.

Fourth generation: A Future of Innovation

Pascal Mouawad Co-Guardian and CEO of Retail Group

With panache, innovation and an inspired vision, Pascal Mouawad has made his mark as the fourth generation of the prestigious Mouawad Group, carrying the company's reputation for excellence in jewelry to new heights.

Born into a family that has owned a number of the world's most important diamonds, Pascal was immersed in the dazzling world of jewelry from a young age. Raised in Geneva, Switzerland, Pascal followed his graduation from high school with a move to Los Angeles to pursue his education. His choice of location was astute; for he already harbored the determination to one day grow the Mouawad family business much further beyond its European base to the United States. After undergraduate studies at California's Pepperdine University, he went on to obtain his gemology degree from the Gemological Institute of America, which he followed with an MBA from UCLA's Anderson School of Management. He is currently pursuing executive education at the Harvard Business School.

Leaving academia behind, in 1999 Pascal made the move to New York from where he set to work putting his vision for the family business into action. The U.S., and specifically Hollywood, remained at the heart of Pascal's vision for the company. His grandfather before him had earned a prestigious status as jeweler to royalty across the world. Decades later, Pascal brought an innovative twist to this family tradition by courting the glamorous 'royalty' of the modern day - iconic celebrities - with Mouawad's renowned European traditions and craftsmanship.

In 2006, Pascal made the pivotal decision to move the company's offices from New York on the East Coast of the U.S. to Los Angeles on the West Coast. The relocation helped nurture Mouawad's growing relations with Hollywood's A-list. Once again, demonstrating pioneering innovation, Pascal took Mouawad's celebrity relationships even further. In addition to dressing some of the hottest stars with his extravagant jewels, Pascal also began collaborating with them.

MOUAWAD & THE GEMOLOGICAL INSTITUTE OF AMERICA

The Mouawad family's association with the gem and jewelry industry goes beyond creating fine jewelry to include supporting the betterment of the overall industry. This support takes place through diverse initiatives, and was formally recognized through the naming in 1997 of The Robert Mouawad Campus at the Gemological Institute of America.

Established in 1931, the Gemological Institute of America is the world's foremost authority on diamonds, colored stones, and pearls. Through education, research, laboratory services and instrument development, this non-profit institute strives to uphold the highest standards of integrity, academics, science and professionalism. The values of integrity and ingenuity have been its mainstay through the decades and have empowered it to become the industry's true leader.

Fred and Pascal, both GIA graduates, and Alain Mouawad have all made contributions to the institute that enabled the building of GIA's state-of-the-art, 230,000-square-foot world headquarters, in Carlsbad, California.

L'Incomparable
Diamond Necklace

Sometimes destiny is found on the road intended to avoid it. This truth could not be better illustrated than through the serendipitous journey of the Incomparable Diamond—the world's largest, internally flawless diamond, whose journey began in the Congo over thirty years ago when it was discovered by a young girl from a discarded pile of kimberlite—an igneous by-product of diamond mining. This almost missed, one-of-a-kind deep yellow diamond once honored by the Smithsonian is now the centerpiece in Mouawad's L'Incomparable Diamond Necklace.

To fashion a world-renowned diamond of such rarity and magnificence into jewelry requires artistry and skills beyond measure. Through creativity, patience and verve, the artisans at Mouawad have crafted the most impressive and gorgeously faceted diamond necklace to date—giving the famous diamond a permanent throne. Honored by Guinness, L'Incomparable Diamond Necklace holds the record for the most valuable necklace in the world and features the flawless 407.48 carat yellow diamond suspended gracefully from a strikingly white diamond necklace revealing a cavalcade of pristine, radiant diamonds of various cuts sublimely intertwined by 18K rose gold branchlets—all leading the eye to the exalted grandeur below.

Befitting of a royal court, L'Incomparable Diamond Necklace leaves nothing to be desired except to grace the neck of a queen or a very special woman that absolutely deserves nothing less.

In 2013, the Gemological Institute of America, the world authority on gem grading, education and research, issued an official Monograph Report on the Incomparable Diamond. Using microscopic observation and infrared spectroscopy, the report details the history, origin and magnificent beauty and rarity of this, the largest internally flawless diamond in the world. The GIA report unveils the natural and atomic processes used to conclude the absolute authenticity of this world renowned and remarkable, untreated naturally yellow diamond marvel.

LA CLASSIQUE

LA CLASSIQUE COLLECTION

Timeless elegance meets Swiss watchmaking traditions in La Classique, the third watch collection to have the distinction of carrying the Mouawad signature. Once again, the detailed excellence synonymous with the name Mouawad is aligned with the horological expertise of the master watchmakers at the Mouawad-owned Swiss Manufacture. Attention to detail resonates throughout the La Classique collection, from the selection of slender skeleton hands to the choice of strap. Rose gold models are perfectly paired with the elegance of genuine crocodile leather straps in shades to match the dial, and finished with a rose gold pin buckle featuring Mouawad engraving. For steel models the choice is between genuine crocodile leather strap or steel bracelet featuring a personalized Mouawad butterfly buckle. At the heart of all La Classique models lies a precision Swiss quartz movement.

La Classique is a collection of timepieces that masterfully blends the essence of traditional Swiss watchmaking with timeless style references. These sophisticated watches are destined to grace the wrists of men and women who appreciate the value of everlasting beauty. Taking its design cues from classic simplicity, La Classique speaks of eternal sophistication. Crafted from rose gold and steel, the four versions of La Classique, two for men and two for women, are available in a range of enchanting variations. The presence of diamonds, stylishly set in the bezel, lugs, and even the numerals, brings the inimitable Mouawad touch of luxurious excellence to the fore.

DIAMOND SCENT

A PRECIOUS FRAGRANCE, THE EPITOME OF EXCELLENCE.

Diamond Scent, a name predestined for this perfume created by the jeweller for the fair sex, offers a subtle blend of floral notes enhanced by hints of precious wood and wild spice. With its subtle composition, this perfume has the aura of a sparkling necklace. Orange blossom, red pepper, white peach and rosewood create a distinct emotion, sensual and alluring. Iris and violet add a touch of nobility; jasmine a hint of glamour. Not forgetting a sprinkling of rose petals, conveying refinement and elegance. Lastly, vetiver and patchouli suggest the merest trace of stringency, while oud wood, benjamin and musk give the fragrance a bold, oriental feel.

The original presentation box, adorned with a series of golden motifs, opens like a butterfly to reveal this "Diamond Scent" perfumed jewel. The lucky recipient will surely be smitten with this unusual attire. She will succumb to the bold and enveloping charm of Diamond Scent, a splendid artefact from the world of perfumery, whose fragrance captures the true spirit of the House of Mouawad and will enchant women in search of elegance beyond compare.

BRAND ENGAGEMENT

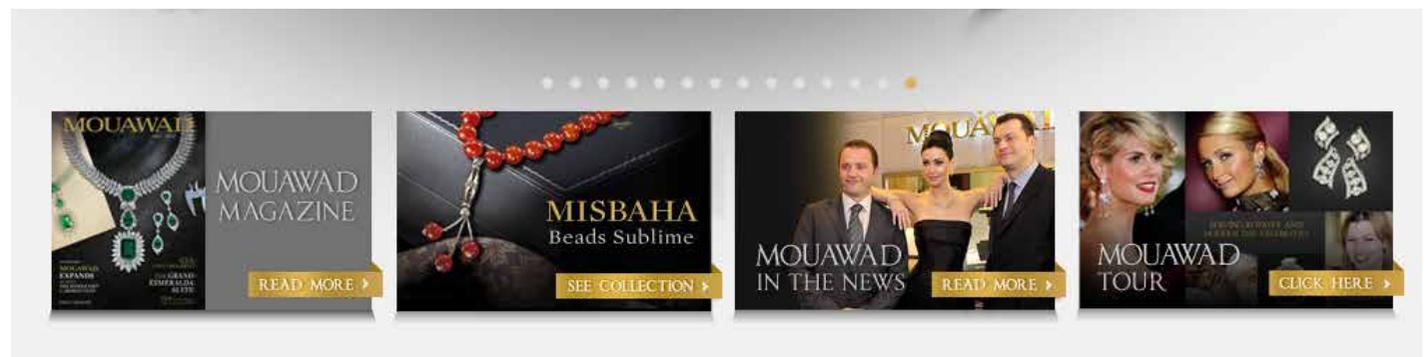

EVERY SECOND COUNTS: MOUAWAD TAKES TO THE SEAS

Precision, accuracy and timing... these are all qualities that any watch maker must understand perfectly. They are also essential in the world of offshore powerboat racing, making Mouawad's sponsorship of four-time offshore powerboat world champion Omar Danial a natural choice. In 2012 Omar competed in the 2012 X-CAT Middle East Powerboat Series that began in January with the Dubai Grand Prix. Joining him on the Mouawad Offshore Powerboat team was Gary Ballough, who has 11 world championships and 104 first places to his credit.
