How to Clean a Steel Griddle Plate

1. At the end of service, allow griddle to cool down to 300° to 350°F and apply room temperature water.
2. Use a griddle scraper to remove debris from the surface.
3. Apply oil and use a griddle brick on the surface. Rub with the grain of the metal while the griddle is still warm.
4. Another viable method is to use a griddle-specified detergent on the plate surface, but be sure the detergent is thoroughly removed by flushing the cooking surface with room temperature water.
5. For hard to reach places, a putty knife may also be used to remove debris
