I see a maintenance minder on my dash with code A179, as per Honda maintenance schedule, these mean: A- Oil change 1 - Rotate tires; Inspect for wear and adjust pressure.*5; 7-Replace brake fluid 9 - Service front and rear brakes. Inspect tie rod ends, steering gear box and boots. Inspect suspension components. Inspect driveshaft boots. Inspect brake hoses and lines (including ABS/VSA). Check all fluid levels and condition of fluids.

Inspect exhaust system. Inspect fuel lines and connections. Of these, - I'll definitely do oil change. - Rotate tires, can I do that when swapping winter tires ? - Is it necessary to replace brake fluid at 26k? - for items in 9, should I be doing any of these now ? Best to do an oil change elsewhere and an inspection somewhere else separately if you are worried. Go to the dealer with those codes and you'll get fsked I'll see you at the top, cause the bottom is too crowded Feb 27th, 2018 8:10 pm aquariusguy Deal Fanatic Sep 13, 2003 9923 posts 1664 upvotes Feb 27th, 2018 8:10 pm 9 "service". dealership will just look at it and say, "looks good" and charge you for it. Brampton Feb 27th, 2018 8:25 pm Babs 25, 2018 436 posts 104 upvotes Feb 27th, 2018 8:25 pm I had a similar problem with my 2014 Honda Civic EX-L. With that said if you want just to do the oil change and rotate the tires yourself to save money just ask them how much they would charge to do the "9 part of it." I said in another thread it's important to do scheduled maintenance to avoid costly repairs in the future, especially in regards to the braking system. For the fluid change I think Hondas interval is every three years regardless of mileage, maybe this first service is for a break in period? No idea. If you want to further save money take it to the mechanic and ask them to do the service as Honda advises. Tell them you just want to do the oil change but they will likely say they are required for warranty purposes...blah..blah..blah.

However, I will pay more to get the oil filter change as well as A service doesn't require oil filter change. OW-20 synthetic oil and filter change is just $59.88 at most Honda dealerships. Pretty reasonable. Feb 27th, 2018 10:02 pm None12 Banned Dec 25, 2017 686 posts 491 upvotes Rockwood Feb 27th, 2018 10:02 pm bst wrote: I Absolutely. It's your money. While Honda corporate advises this I haven't been to a single Honda or Acura dealership that doesn't change the oil filter on an 'A' service. I've always asked to make sure and they've always told me that they change the filter as well. I said ready Honda as they charge $53.xx for an oil change with taxes, good price if you're in the area. So now brake fluid replacement is every two years? That Civic would have only been on the road in late 2015 at the earliest. Turbo power! At the very least have the brake components checked or go to an independent garage. I have a friend belly aching about costs now because his calipers are seized due to not ever having them serviced, his car is two years older though. Also does anyone know if the new civic no longer has b service? It was my understanding that the items on this sub item 9 are covered in a b service at least with my cars.
