from the Principal's pen

As we enter the final two weeks of school, I want to encourage every student to finish the year strong by continuing to do your best each and every day. The end of the school year is an important time to stay focused, come to school consistently, and demonstrate the character and leadership that make our campus special. Every assignment completed, every positive choice made, and every act of kindness shown helps build a stronger future for you and those around you. Attendance remains extremely important during these last days of school. Being present each day allows students to continue learning, participate in end-of-year activities, and support their classmates and teachers. We also encourage our students to set the example for others by showing respect, responsibility, and perseverance both inside and outside the classroom. Younger students are always watching and learning from the example our older students set. Remember, success does not happen overnight. It is built through daily effort, determination, and consistency. As Robert Collier once said, "Success is the sum of small efforts, repeated day-in and day-out." Let us all continue giving our best effort through the very last day of school and finish the year with pride, excellence, and Mustang spirit.

SCIENCE FUN FACT

Cows have four unique compartments in their stomachs that help them digest tough foods like grass. These compartments—called the rumen, reticulum, omasum, and abomasum—each play a special role in breaking down the rough food they eat.

MATH IN EVERYDAY LIFE

Budgeting

Of course, it is through Math that we're able to designate a specific amount on our daily expenses. If it weren't for the utilization of Mathematics, we wouldn't be able to figure out how much we will spend on our transportation, food, and savings.
