"Welcome to Fossati's - Texas' oldest delicatessen."

You're greeted with a smile when you walk through the old-west, saloon-style double doors of this Victoria, Texas establishment that ranks no less than near the top of the list of bar rooms, saloons and dance halls so dear to our Lone Star state. You can have a cold bottle of Shiner Bock or a root beer in a frosted mug, whichever you prefer. Take it seated at the spittoon style bar or at one of the red and white checkered tables, while you gaze through this small, southeast Texas farming and ranch town's history depicted in numerous articles and artifacts hung along the walls. Established in 1882 and founded by Frank Napoleon Fossati, Fossati's Delicatessen is the oldest delicatessen in the state of Texas and rich in Texas history.
