Do you need help with your day-to-day activities? Are you finding it hard to look after yourself? You might be eligible for Attendance Allowance. However, before we get into how you can best fill in the Attendance Allowance form, let's have a look at what Attendance Allowance actually is. What is Attendance Allowance? The Attendance Allowance is available to anyone that has reached state pension age with physical or mental disabilities and who needs help with washing, dressing, eating or any other daily activities. The Attendance Allowance essentially helps with extra financial costs if you need someone to help look after you. You are also eligible for attendance allowance if you pay for your care in a care home. If you are looking to claim Attendance Allowance and need help with filling in the Attendance Allowance form, we've put together a step-by-step guide that will guide you through the entire process. In this guide, we cover the following questions about how to fill in the Attendance Allowance form: How do I get the Attendance Allowance claim form? What care needs do I need to have to be eligible for Attendance Allowance? How much detail should I go into on the Attendance Allowance form? Does a supporting statement help? Who needs to sign the form? Where to send the form and next steps... Our step-by-step guide for filling in the Attendance Allowance form: 1. How do I get the Attendance Allowance claim form? To claim the Attendance Allowance, you need to fill in an AA1 Attendance Allowance application form. You should complete the AA1 Attendance Allowance form at your earliest convenience, even if you're still living in your own home. You can get the Attendance Allowance claim form by requesting one over the phone or by printing one out from gov.uk Open the printable claim form to see the completion notes. It's OK to cross something out. 4. What care needs do I need to have to be eligible for Attendance Allowance? When completing the form, don't underestimate your needs. Be realistic and note the amount of help needed on bad days, as well as on good ones. Below is a list of a few things you may need help with and need to consider when completing the Attendance Allowance claim form: Washing: do you need help getting in and out of the bath or shower, washing your hair or shaving? Going to the toilet: do you need help going to the toilet during the day or night? Do you suffer from incontinence? Might you need help with changing beds? Getting dressed or undressed: do you need help with this? Mealtimes: do you need any help with eating or drinking?

Agree from your GP in the last 12 months, have you seen anyone about your illness or disabilities?

For example, a hospital doctor or consultant, district or specialist nurse, community psychiatric nurse, occupational therapist, physiotherapist, radiologist or social worker.

Yes ☐ Please continue below. No ☐ Go to question 14.

Their name (Mr, Mrs, Miss, Ms, Dr)

Their profession or specialist area

The address where you see them for example, the address of the health centre or hospital.

Postcode

Their phone number, including the dialling code

Your hospital record number You can find this on your appointment card or letter.

Which of your illnesses or disabilities do you see them about?

How often do you usually see them because of your illness or disabilities?

When did you last see them because of your illness or disabilities?

If you have seen more than one professional, please tell us their contact details, what they treat you for and when you last saw them in question 43 Extra information.

Do you have difficulty operating the oven, opening cans or doing other things in the kitchen? Medical treatment: do you understand which medication to take and when? Can you operate medical devices (such as a hearing aid) or safely manage any conditions or illnesses (such as diabetes) by yourself? Getting around indoors: do you need help navigating from room to room, getting in and out of bed? Do you need aids and adaptations, such as a bed-raiser, a raised toilet seat, shower seat or a walking frame? Communicating: if you have poor eyesight, do you need help reading your post? If you're deaf, can you hear the doorbell? Supervision: are you in danger of falling? Do you need someone to watch over you in case you have a seizure or a fall? Do you feel you might be in danger if no one is there to support you? 5. How much detail should I go into on the Attendance Allowance form? Give as much detail as you can in each section, with examples. It's also important to describe how another person helps you - or could help you. This is a key reason to qualify for Attendance Allowance. 6. Giving consent for DWP to contact my GP or others involved in my case? You may be asked to give your consent for the Department for Work and Pensions to contact your GP or the people or organisations involved with looking after you. While you don't have to agree to this, it might result in the benefit not being made available if you don't. 7. Consider a supporting statement! It's worth asking someone to write a statement as it helps reinforce your case. It could be a friend, a relative or a professional person, such as a doctor. If that person understands the rules of the allowance, it will be even better, as they will know what relevant information to include. 8. Who needs to sign the form? You must sign the form yourself, so if someone has been helping you to fill in the form, you should read it through before signing. The exceptions to this rule include if the person filling in the form holds a Power of Attorney, or there are other reasons you can't sign, such as a mental health problem. 9. Where do I send my completed Attendance Allowance form? Post the form rather than email it. Don't email the completed form as it won't be accepted - you'll need to post it to the address given on the form. 10. What happens next? Once the application has been received, you might also be asked to attend a medical assessment to check your eligibility, which can be at your home if getting to the assessment is difficult for you. If possible, take someone who cares for you, such as a family member or friend, to the meeting in case anything isn't clear.

Attendance Allowance Address Send FormDetailsFile FormatSize: 3 MBDownloadDetailsFile FormatSize: 175 KBDownloadDetailsFile FormatSize: 45 KBDownloadDetailsFile FormatSize: 335 KBDownloadAttendance allowance is actually a great opportunity brought about by the UK government to its senior citizens and is a humble effort by the government to bring some relief to the disabled and helpless people. This helps the disabled who have no one to care for get some help, and get some weekly income. This is important for sustenance and is a very important and useful program. There are many citizens in this age group who have no income and have very little resources in the form of manpower or money to get on with the difficult life. The scheme gives them a bug support to go on. Who are Eligible for the Attendance Allowance? The aged people who are above the age of 65, and are disabled too severely to get along with normal body functions and day to day work without the help of a caregiver, can apply for this allowance. This does not depend on whether you are staying alone or with family, or if you already have a caregiver or not. The government is entitled to give you the allowance if the eligibility is proved. However to get this allowance you will have to send a written claim to the government. To make this claim, and fill up the application form orderly the samples and formats are given online. Can you get Carer's Allowance?

Use this quick checklist before you fill in the form. If you can tick all four statements, you may be able to get Carer's Allowance.

The person I am looking after is getting one of these benefits:

- the care component of Disability Living Allowance at the middle or highest rate. The mobility component is not a qualifying benefit for Carer's Allowance
- Attendance Allowance
- Constant Attendance Allowance at or above - the normal maximum rate, as an addition to Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit, or - the basic, full-day rate as an addition to a War Disablement Pension.

I am aged 16 or over

I am looking after a disabled person for at least 35 hours a week

Looking after someone can mean many things. It includes things like cooking meals, or helping them with their shopping.

I normally live in Great Britain

By Great Britain we mean England, Scotland and Wales. You should also tick this box if you are part of a family living overseas with HM forces.

If you have ticked all four of the statements above, claim Carer's Allowance straight away.
