

State Wants Biggest Budget Ever!

10% More $, No Post-Covid Spending Cuts, Shortfalls Coming.

Delaware Governor John Carney has unveiled a proposed state operating budget exceeding $6 billion for the upcoming fiscal year, marking an 8% increase despite a projected 2% revenue decline in the current year. Carney's plan is higher than the benchmark recommended by the state's revenue projection panel, following a nearly 10% increase in the current year's budget, while the state's population grew only 1%.

The notable growth in spending is attributed to pay raises for state employees and escalating healthcare costs for both current employees and retirees.

Future Revenue Shortfalls Ahead: Finance Secretary Rick Geisenberger warns of projected flat revenues for the next two years, declining by 2% in the current fiscal year and then increasing by an equal amount in fiscal 2025. Looking ahead to fiscal year '26, there's a possibility of drawing from the stabilization fund unless revenues significantly rebound.

State Needs Cash Next Year Carney warns of potential revenue softening over the next two years and suggests a reliance on the "budget stabilization fund," created in 2018 to address future shortfalls. The Governor anticipates the need to tap into the stabilization fund to cover shortfalls in the coming years.

Despite this, the State is proposing:

The Largest State Operating Budget: The operating budget will now exceed $6B almost $2B more than Carney's first budget.

No Post Covid -19 Cuts : Following Covid-19, the budget increased by almost 9% each year. There are no post-covid budget cost savings.

Another 8% Salary Increase for Teachers: Carney's proposed budget allocates for 8% up after 2024's 10% wage hike for teachers, aiming to raise starting pay for teachers to $60,000 by fiscal 2028.

Unstoppable Healthcare Costs: now 40%: Healthcare spending constitutes nearly 40% of the budget growth and recommending a $200 million increase for Medicaid and healthcare plans for state employees/retirees.

9% Less for Non-Profits: Carney also wants a smaller grants and aid package of $66.5 million for community organizations, non-profits, and volunteer fire companies.

Almost Nothing for EV Mandate: Budget calls for $4 infrastructure to support the EV mandate.

Despite the proposed budget's growth, Carney urges caution in expenditure to ensure long-term sustainability given the anticipated revenue challenges in the coming years.

Red Clay School District Seeks First Property Tax Hike in 10 Years

On Wednesday, February 28th, the Red Clay Consolidated School District community will have the opportunity to vote on two important proposals aimed at preserving, revitalizing, and enhancing our District's programs, services, facilities, and staff positions. Red Clay remains dedicated to identifying the most effective solutions to benefit our students and community. The school district has not sought a referendum for nearly a decade. The operating and capital referenda are designed to support substantial building renovations, the creation of modern learning environments, and the ongoing needs of our students, including funding for educational resources and teacher and support staff positions.

Since 2014, the enrollment in the school has dropped by 9% while income from the current property tax has increased by 50% and the State contribution to funding the School District has increased by 60%. Over the last 10 years, the school budget has increased by $100,000,000 and the cost per student has increase 73%. Despite the funding increases only 27% of students are proficient in Math across the district as compared to 37.6% in 2014.

School officials describe the vote as an investment in the students future. Community Groups have expressed concern over increases funding with out improvement in performance.

Vote on February 28 at Skyline Middle School , North Star Elementary or 13 others.

State Treasurer Offers Families Financial Advice

54% of Families Stress About Finances. State Treasurer Offers Tips for Managing Families Finances.

Advice from Personal Finance Experts is posted on the State of Delaware website by State Treasurer Colleen Davis:

1. Explore Cost-Saving Measures

Learn and implement ways to save on everyday expenses. This might involve energy-efficient home improvements, comparison shopping for insurance, or using coupons and discounts when shopping

2. Re-evaluate Your Budget

In times of rising prices, it's essential to reevaluate your budget regularly. Identify areas where you can cut back on discretionary spending to offset the impact of inflation on necessities.

3. Maintain an Emergency Fund

Emergency funds are financial safety nets to fall back on if something happens. Most financial experts advise setting aside three to six months (at least) worth of living expenses in a readily accessible account. This fund can help you weather unexpected expenses without using credit cards or depleting your savings.

5. Pay Off High-Interest Debt Paying off high-interest debts, i.e., credit card balances, should be a top priority. High-interest debt can compound your financial challenges in an inflationary environment.

6. Consider Salary Negotiations

If you're an employee, don't hesitate to discuss salary adjustments with your employer to keep pace with inflation. This is particularly important for maintaining your family's financial stability.

7. Automate Your Savings

Set up automatic contributions to your savings and investment accounts. Consistency helps you reach your goals.

Governor Carney's 2025 Budget Sparks Debate Over Spending and Sustainability.

By Former Rep. Ruth Briggs King

Can you imagine if you planned to spend more than you earn? Your family and friends would think you were nuts! It would be like stepping off a cliff without a parachute.

But that is precisely the risk the Governor's 2025 budget presents for Delaware. Let's examine this year's budget:

Repetitive Spending Patterns: Let's compare Governor Carney's budget proposal to an old, worn-out song, suggesting that it follows a familiar and potentially unsustainable pattern of increased spending.

DEFAC Recommendations Ignored: The Delaware Economic and Financial Advisory Council's (DEFAC) projections indicate a decrease in revenue for the state. However, Governor Carney's budget proposes the largest increase in spending, going against DEFAC recommendations. This divergence raises concerns about the prudence of the budget.

Continuous Budget Growth: The annual inclusion of 'door openers' in the budget, assuming that previous funding levels will be maintained or increased. This practice leads to an expanded budget each year, with little consideration for spending cuts or the elimination of outdated programs.

Impact on Delaware's Economy: The Delaware's economy is not growing due to factors such as increasing energy costs, expensive mandates, and labor issues. These issues not only affect state spending but also impact business revenue and personal income, which are crucial sources of income for the state.

Taxation and Surplus Funds: Past promises to reduce taxes when the economy improves, which were not fulfilled. It points out that while there were surplus funds, new spending was enacted, raising questions about fiscal responsibility.

Smoothing Fund: Governor Carney's support for a smoothing fund is acknowledged as a positive step. However, we need legislative codification to ensure the policy's continuity beyond the current administration.

Healthcare and Education Costs: The significant budget allocation for healthcare and education, particularly the two billion dollars directed to each is unsustainable. We need policy changes in areas like Medicaid benefits, fraud prevention, and mandates on healthcare providers.

Education Spending and Performance: Despite being among the highest spenders on education, Delaware is cited as one of the lowest-performing states in terms of student outcomes. Change is necessary but not in the form of increased funding.

Remaining State Services: The remaining two billion dollars cover various state services, such as prisons, environmental enforcement, foster care, facility maintenance, and state vehicles must be prioritized like every family already does.

Let's Seek a Sound Fiscal Policy: We need for sound fiscal policy, which involves creativity, balance, prioritization, and sensible objectives, rather than merely increasing spending on existing programs.

Community Poll: Expand Government or Cut Taxes?

In an recent online survey, Delaware Residents seem to disagree with State Officials:

After four years of budget surpluses, should the State reduce taxes to let families spend more of their own money?

71% Yes, the emergency is over, stop spending.
29% No, everyone is not okay. Some still need help.

If Covid-19 was expensive and required increased spending to help people survive, should there be a spending reduction when Covid is over?

68% Yes. Inflation is hurting families, They need help.
28% No. Government is better equipped to help people fairly.

An Online Survey of 250 Delaware voters between 1/15 and 2/4/2024

Former Delaware General Assembly member Ruth Briggs King, is a vocal critic of the budget and the process of building Delaware's State Budget.

Three Little Bakers Finally Resolved After 14 Years

County Approves Reduced Housing Plan Amid Community Concerns

After a protracted 14-year legal dispute between the County, represented by officials Sheldon and Kilpatrick, and the Onix Group developers, a final judgment has been reached regarding the Three Little Bakers Golf Course. The resolution permits the construction of approximately 60 homes while allocating 130 acres for the preservation of a golf course. This decision marks a considerable reduction from the developer's initial proposal for over 200 homes.

Under the approved plan, the development will feature exclusively single-family homes distributed across different sections of the golf course:

A cul-de-sac, accommodating around 14 homes, is slated for construction off Three Little Bakers Blvd. on the Linden Knoll side.

Approximately 17 single-family homes are planned to the left of Fairway Falls, with their driveways connecting to Skyline Drive—a design reminiscent of those in the Village of Linden Hill.

Another segment of the development includes about 27 single-family homes situated between Fairway Falls and Three Little Bakers Dr. A new street will connect homes on both sides, with the configuration as either a cut-through or cul-de-sac yet to be determined.

Despite the reduction in the number of homes, community members are voicing disappointment and concerns over the new development. The future use of the remaining 130 acres is currently shrouded in uncertainty.

Residents and stakeholders are urged to stay informed about further developments, actively participate in community discussions, and closely monitor updates from both the County and the Onix Group regarding the use of the golf course and its potential impact on the surrounding community.

“We Should Build the State Budget with Family Principles & Common Sense.”

Delaware State Representative
Michael Ramone, 21st District

The ongoing debate on government spending often overlooks a concept – fiscal responsibility. State government needs to emulate the financial prudence average families exhibit in their budgeting and spending decisions.

We should compare government practices to family financial management. The government might be more inclined to operate within its means. Unchecked spending without corresponding income, akin to the lessons learned by families, can lead to financial instability and enduring consequences, particularly relevant as the State Budget reaches unprecedented levels.

The family budgeting principle of prioritization, proposing that the government prioritize essential expenses like infrastructure, healthcare, and education before allocating funds to discretionary items, ensures that critical needs are addressed before resources are directed to non-essential projects.

Furthermore, saving for the future is essential and calls for the government to establish a fiscal reserve to address economic downturns and unforeseen challenges. By planning strategically, the government can be prepared for uncertainties without resorting to hasty and potentially harmful fiscal measures.

During challenging times, the government should mirror the discipline practiced by families, opting to evaluate and prioritize expenditures rather than resorting to deficit spending and burdening future generations with debt.

We call for the government to adopt a family-like approach to budgeting is seen as a means to foster transparency and accountability. Clear communication about budget allocations, expenditures, and the rationale behind financial decisions builds trust between the government and its citizens.

The universal principles of prudence, prioritization, saving for the future, and living within means are applicable.

By incorporating these principles, the government can lead by example, promoting economic stability and securing a prosperous future for all. We should pursue more bi-partisan efforts, transcend political differences, and work towards a fiscally responsible and prosperous future.

Testimonials: Advice from Seniors About Challenging Times?

*“Trim the Family Budget”,
“Make Better Choices”*

"Budgeting isn't about restriction; it's about intentional choices. As an urban mom, I've discovered that planning meals ahead, embracing second-hand treasures, and diving into DIY hacks not only save money but also infuse our home with creativity and resourcefulness. It's not merely about cutting costs; it's about investing wisely in what truly matters for our family. From energy-efficient practices to clever subscription management, every decision is a step towards financial freedom. Our home is a haven of mindful spending, where every penny saved brings us closer to the security and fulfillment we cherish. It's not just a budget; it's a lifestyle of purposeful abundance."

Florence,
Wilmington, Delaware

"In times of uncertainty, the choice between saving and spending becomes a path for financial resilience. Saving is not just about storing money; it's a shield against the unknown. While spending brings temporary satisfaction, saving cultivates peace of mind and a sense of security. It's a balance that ensures stability in the face of unpredictability. In uncertain times, the real value lies not just in what we spend today, but in what we save for a more secure tomorrow."

Mark, Lewes, Delaware

*“Get Second Job”,
“Pay off the Cards”*

"Sometimes life hands you challenges that demand more than what one job can offer. Don't shy away from getting a second job. It's not about pride; it's about responsibility. I've learned that hard work is the key to overcoming obstacles. A second job isn't just about making ends meet; it's a testament to your determination and love for your family's well-being. Embrace the opportunity to provide not just for today but to secure a better tomorrow. It's a path paved with resilience and sacrifice, and your dedication will inspire generations to come."

Edward,
Newark, Delaware

"Paying off credit cards isn't just about money; it's a step towards freedom. It's not just about numbers; it's about reclaiming control and building a future free from debt's burdens. The advantage lies in the empowerment and peace of mind gained, a journey towards a debt-free horizon."

*“Invest in what's Important”
“Face difficult choices”*

"Being smart about your money isn't always easy, but it's undeniably crucial. It requires thoughtful decisions, discipline, and a vision for the future. In a world filled with temptations, choosing financial prudence is a testament to your commitment to a secure and fulfilling life. It's the path less traveled, but its rewards echo through your financial well-being and peace of mind. The difficulty lies in the choices, but the importance lies in the impact — shaping a future where your money works intelligently for you, not the other way around."

Lois,
Middletown, DE

"Juggling the family budget is no walk in the park; it's tough, sometimes a bit scary, and downright frustrating. But, here's the deal — you've got to face it. Think of it like solving a puzzle. Sure, it might feel a bit challenging, but finding a way to deal with it is the key to unlocking a more secure and peaceful future for your family. So, take a deep breath, tackle it one step at a time, and remember, you're not alone in this financial journey"

Blue-Gold Basketball Tournaments Tips Off with Best H.S. Players

On March 16 at Smyrna High School, the very best boys and girls basketball players in Delaware will be gathering for the Blue Gold Basketball Tournament. The top 30 boys and 30 girls are nominated by their coaches and selected by all the coaches statewide. 17 players from upstate represent the Blue team and 13 players from downstate represent the Gold team. Two upstate players are assigned to Gold to even the numbers.

But the event is not just about basketball. There is also a scholarship opportunity. All senior basketball players, regardless of whether they're selected for the tournament, are invited to write about an incident in their basketball experience, and the important lesson they learned from it. Additionally, the event supports a charity each year.

This year, the Delaware Safety Council will be the beneficiary. Outside, there will be exhibits by SmartDrive, the Safety Council, the Office of Highway Safety and the Delaware State Police focused on driving safety, always an issue of concern with teen drivers.

Sponsorships are being accepted. The Girls' game starts at noon, and the Boys will tip off at 2 pm. Use QRC for ticket information.

Update on the General Assembly Proposals that Impact All of Us!

Liberty and Freedom vs. the Collective Good...in 2024

The debate over government spending and personal freedom is like a long-standing puzzle, showing the struggle between helping everyone and letting people help themselves and their family.

Some folks say the government should spend more to make sure everyone gets what they need, like good schools and healthcare. They believe this helps the whole community and makes things fairer. On the other hand, there are people who think the government should stay out of our wallets. They think if we have more of our own money, we can use it to start businesses, be creative, and take care of ourselves. Every dollar the gov't spends comes from someone else working.

It's like a tug-of-war between making sure everyone has what they need and letting people decide what to do with their own money. Finding the right balance is a bit tricky but very important. Some think more government is the answer, while others say less government is better.

It's a tough decision for leaders, needing to consider both short-term needs and long-term plans to create a money system that helps everyone and still lets individuals make their own choices.

Ultimately, finding the right balance becomes a delicate dance in policy-making. Here are a few of the bills moving through the legislature this month. Tell your legislator how you feel.

New Bills Impacting Taxes & the Budget

- HB29-HA1: "$750 Senior Property Tax Credit"– Submitted by Rep. Hensley. Assigned to Appropriations in Apr. '23.–HB234, introduced by Rep. Ramone increases allowance to $1000 for property
