EXHIBIT B

Utah code 59-2-919 provides guidance and regulations for property tax increases through a process called Truth in Taxation. This process requires a statement of the Proposed Property Tax Impact Schedule

Proposed Property Tax Impact Schedule

The town of Spring Lake is proposing a property tax increase for the 26/27 fiscal year. This Tax Impact Schedule Statement contains estimates of the property taxes collected by the county in 2023-2025. These estimates are calculated on the basis of data provided in the feasibility study and the previous year (25/26) county tax rates. The actual tax on your property and proposed tax increase on your property may vary from this estimate.

Upon incorporation, a new municipality's property tax rates are set at 0.0. The first year of incorporation a new municipality must go through the Truth in Taxation process regardless of whether the new tax rate reflects a tax increase or a tax decrease from the previous year. It is the intent of the Spring Lake town council to maintain property taxes at the same tax rate as the county rate the previous year. In reality there will not be a tax increase from the previous year.

Utah County collects property taxes as revenue for several different entities such as Nebo School District, Utah Water District, Utah County, Etc, and for several county “service districts” to provide services to unincorporated areas of the county such as fire protection, law enforcement, and community development. (More information and a list of these service districts is provided in a separate document, “About Property Taxes) It is proposed that the Town of Spring collect property taxes equivalent to the combined three county service districts in 2025

About Property Taxes

Property taxes in Utah are collected by local governments—including counties, cities, school districts, and service districts—to fund essential services and infrastructure.

Why Property is Taxed

Under Utah State law, local governments have the authority to levy a property tax on any property within their geographical boundaries. This tax is not contingent on whether the property owner directly benefits from the services provided by the local government. These taxes fund essential services such as law enforcement, emergency services, road and utility maintenance, schools, and water/sewer infrastructure. Every property within the county falls under the jurisdiction of several local governments. Based on the overlap of these local governments, the county creates Taxing Districts that combine the tax rates of each local government into a single tax rate.

What Determines Your Property Tax?

There are three elements in determining the amount of property tax assessed. The annual budget of a local government, a property's taxable value, and final adopted Tax Rate.

Budget: Every local government must adopt a balanced budget each year. The portion of the budget funded by property taxes will be proportionally divided among all taxpayers within the government's boundaries, based on the taxable value of their property

Taxable Value: The portion of a property's value that is taxed is referred to as its Taxable Value. For all property, except primary residences, Taxable Value is 100% of the Assessed Market Value. For primary residences, Taxable Value is only 55% of the Assessed Market Value.

Tax Rate: The tax rate charged to a property owner by a local government is determined by a simple formula: Total Estimated Property Tax Revenue divided by the Total Taxable Value within the government's boundaries. This rate is then applied to each property individually to calculate the property tax due. See below for a more detailed explanation.

Where Do My Tax Dollars Go?

Your property taxes help fund essential services that keep our community running smoothly. The accompanying chart shows how these dollars are divided, giving you a clear picture of where your money goes and how it supports the programs and services we rely on every day.

In 2024, Utah County Residents paid a total of $884,213,605 in Property Taxes to local government agencies, as per the 2025 Treasurer 750 Report that can be found at TaxRates.Utah.gov. Those taxes were distributed to the various local governments in the following amounts:

2024 County Distribution Totals

School Districts - 68.14% $602,470,680

Cities/towns - 12.38% $109,422,640

Utah County - 7.13% $63,048,959

Redevelopment Agencies - 5.17% $45,692,666

Utah Water District - 4.15% $36,722,027

Service Districts - 1.53% $13,525,921

Local & State Assessing/Collecting - 1.36% $12,044,581

City Water Districts - 0.15% $1,286,131

As you can see the majority of property taxes go to school districts. Only 12.38% of all property taxes collected by Utah County went back to cities and towns such as Payson and Santaquin. Spring Lake was not included as a city/town at that time. Service districts 6 (law enforcement), 7 (Fire protection), and 8 (community development) are property taxes collected by the county to provide unincorporated areas of the county with these services. At the time Spring Lake was unincorporated and our property taxes contributed to those service districts. As we are now a town, our share of property taxes will come back to us as an entity or municipality and will not be included in the special service districts.

Our goal is to keep our portion of property taxes equivalent to what the county had been collecting in service districts 6, 7, and 8, however, as you can see, your total property taxes are influenced by many other factors such as school districts, county, Utah Water District, etc.

The State of Utah has adopted a “Balanced Budget” approach to property taxes, meaning that a municipality sets a budget and then the tax rate is determined based on the taxable value of all properties within the municipality. Each year the town's budget stays the same. If property values go up then the actual tax rate goes down but the dollar amount of taxes paid stays the same. If property values go down the actual tax rate goes up keeping the dollar amount of taxes paid the same.

This approach keeps the dollar amount paid by property owners consistent even though the taxable value or tax rate may change. It also prevents cities/towns from collecting windfall revenues when property values increase sharply. However, this approach does not take into account the cost of doing business for cities/towns. The cost of services may increase due to inflation but the town's revenue from property taxes remains the same. If the revenue from property taxes does not meet the town's cost to provide services then a town may opt to increase the budget which would increase the tax rate. In such a case, the town must go through the Truth in Taxation process.

When Spring Lake incorporated our local property tax rate was set at 0.0, however, the county had been collecting property taxes through special service areas (6, 7, and 8) to provide services such as fire and law enforcement. The combined county tax rate for these three areas was .00133. The intent of the town council is to keep our new town tax rate at the same rate as the county rate (.00133). In reality we are NOT proposing a tax rate increase, however, since our tax rate was set at 0.0 when we incorporated, the state tax commission does consider this a tax rate increase from 0.00 to .00133.

How are Property Tax Rates Calculated?

Changes in assessed value can have varied impacts on property owners, especially as values fluctuate across the county. While it may seem logical to expect property taxes to rise and fall in direct correlation with property values, this is not always the case.

There is a relationship between assessed value and taxes due, but general perception and actual practice can differ. Broad changes in assessed value create tax shifts that affect different properties in diverse ways. For instance, if there is an average 10% value increase across the county, a property with only a 5% value increase could see a decrease in taxes. Conversely, if overall county values decrease by 10%, and a property only decreases by 5%, the tax on that property could increase.

Each year assessed values of various geographic regions and property types throughout the county change by different percentages. This results in tax shifts from some areas and property types to others. As illustrated in the examples above, there will inevitably be property owners who, despite receiving a reduction in assessed value, experience an increase in property tax. These examples are illustrative and may not apply to every individual property. The equation to calculate the tax rate is:

$$\frac{\text{Budget}}{\text{Taxable Value}} = \text{Tax Rate}$$

For example, if a local government has a budget of $100,000 and a taxable value within its boundaries of $100 million, then the tax rate for that entity would be 0.1%:

$$\frac{$100,000}{$100,000,000} = 0.1\%$$

This rate changes every year. If the budget remains the same but the assessed value changes, the rate will change opposite to the assessed value. Using the same example budget again, if the taxable value for this tax entity increased to $110 million, the rate would decrease to .0909%.

$$\frac{$100,000}{$110,000,000} = 0.0909\%$$
