

Incoterms 2020 | 7 Key Changes

Updated every 10 years, ICC Incoterms 2020 rules define the responsibilities of buyers and sellers for the delivery of goods under sales contracts. They are the authoritative rules for determining how costs and risks are allocated to the parties.

Incoterms rules are all about the delivery, which is reflective of the key changes in Incoterms® 2020. There are very few court cases on the interpretation of Incoterms rules, rather, the problems that normally arise are due to the wrong use of an Incoterms rule. Buyers and sellers using the right Incoterms rules are often set up well, therefore it's essential for businesses to fully understand the risks and delivery associated with each incoterms rule.

7 Key changes to Incoterms 2020

- 1. DAT Incoterm changed to DPU
- 2. Insurance points are clarified in CIF and CIP incoterms rules
- 3. Costs and cost structures are now clarified
- 4. Security in relation to transport is now clearly detailed
- 5. Provisions to allow for own transport rather than assuming 3rd party transport
- 6. FCA, FOB and Bills of Lading (see Annexure Two)
- 7. Presentation and design is much more user friendly

The substance of Incoterms 2020 has not changed considerably, but the small subtle changes are absolutely crucial for trade specialists.

1. DAT Incoterm changed to DPU (Delivery at Place Unloaded)

Following on from several rounds of consultation, the Drafting Group made the choice of removing the word 'terminal' as it often caused confusion.

DAT required Delivery at Terminal (unloaded), however, following on from feedback to the drafting committee, it was decided to change the term to DPU (Delivery at Place Unloaded), to broadly cover 'any place, whether covered or not'.

2. Insurance cover differs between CIF and CIP

Under CIF / CIP, the seller buys insurance for the buyer. In Incoterms® 2010, insurance is required under clause C, but in Incoterms® 2020, CIP requires insurance complying with Institute Cargo Clause (A) whereas CIF requires insurance under Clause C. Why? Because Clause A covers a more comprehensive higher level of insurance (e.g. for the manufactured goods), whereas a lower level of cover from Clause C would probably apply to the commodities world.

3. The Listing of Costs

All costs are now listed in the 'Allocation of Costs' sections for each rule, to avoid confusions. Because the ordering of articles within the Incoterms 2020 rules have also changed, these now appear in the A9/B9 section of each rule.

Costs were a big issue in the 2010 Incoterms®. Carriers often changed their pricing structure to deal with add ons and sellers were often surprised by being back charged terminal handling charges. The A9 sections in the Incoterms rules guide now collects together the costs, with the principle aim of clearly stating the costs to each party.

4. Security Requirements

Cargo security has been particularly important since 9/11, and the 2020 rules now address many of the security-related requirements that became so prevalent in the early part of this century.

From a carriage requirements perspective, security related allocations have been added to A4 and A7 of each Incoterms rule, and the necessary costs associated have been added to A9/B9 (see 3).

5. Own transport

Incoterms 2010 rules assumed that goods carried from the seller to the buyer were via a 3rd party. Incoterms 2020 allows for own means of transport by the buyer in the FCA rules and by the seller in the D rules.

6. FCA and Bills of lading

According to FCA, part B4, 'The buyer must contract or arrange at its own cost for the carriage of the goods'.

There is a gap in delivery between FCA and FOB. If you're selling FCA, your delivery point is different to FOB. The difference between FCA and FOB to the seller is a significant cost and risk. In the 2010 Incoterms rules, exporters of goods in containers were encouraged to use FCA, which seemed best for both parties. However, many people were using FOB when they should've really been using FCA.

Why? Even sophisticated sellers said they wanted to use FOB, because a standard Letter of Credit requires an onboard Bill of Lading to be presented. Therefore the sellers were often taking the risk and using FOB instead, because they wanted to get paid under the LC. The Incoterms® 2020 FCA extra provision now states that if the parties have so agreed, the buyer must instruct the carrier to issue to the seller, at the buyers cost and risk, a transport document stating that the goods have been loaded (such as a Bill of Lading with an on board notation)'.

7. Presentation and design

Incoterms® 2020 rules have much more extensive explanatory notes, with better diagrams, a different structure for users and a reordering of rules to make delivery and risk more obvious. Maritime related rules still haven't changed and remain at the back of the rule book as they still might be used for bulk commodities.

What is 'Effective date' in Incoterms?

Despite an 'effective' date of 01 January 2020, Incoterms 2020 can be used now. That said, after this date, there is still no obligation to use Incoterms 2020.

So what does 'Effective 01 January 2020' actually mean? If you haven't made it clear in your contract which Incoterms version to refer to, or have a flexible contract which states that when the contract is effective, the latest Incoterms® rules apply, then the 2020 rules will apply in these circumstances. That said, it's estimated that the Incoterms 2020 rules might take 1-2 years for the market to adopt.

3 tips on how to use Incoterms correctly:

- Choose the right rule
- Specify the place / port precisely
- Incorporate them into the contract as well as the LC and invoice

Annexure Two | What is a Bill of Lading (BL)?

Bills of Lading are cited frequently in shipping and trade documents; especially when there are cross border transactions or the movement of goods overseas.

A Bill of Lading is often abbreviated to BoL or B/L. It is a list of the cargo which a ship is carrying as a receipt; provided by the master of the ship to the person who is consigning the goods. BLs are issued by a carrier of goods to acknowledge that they are in receipt of cargo for shipment.

What is the criteria for a Bill of Lading?

There is the requirement for a bill of lading to be negotiable, and it is widely seen to have three main purposes:

- a definitive receipt (goods are loaded)
- terms of carriage contract
- document of title to goods

Bills of lading are used to make sure that exporters are paid and importers receive goods. We will also usually see a policy of insurance and invoice for the goods. It is important to note that a bill of lading is negotiable, but a policy and invoice are assignable.

Bills of Lading Frequently Asked Questions

1. How are BLs transferred?

A bill of lading is transferable by endorsement or by the lawful transfer of possession. A carrier must issue a bill of lading to the shipper which sets out the specification, quantity, nature and quality.

2. What is a BL used for?

It is a contract with conditions attached which is signed by the owner of the ship when the product is loaded. There is an acknowledgement of the receipt of products, with the undertaking to deliver goods at the end of the shipment.

3. What do you track and prove of a Bill of Lading?

Bills of lading come into use when goods are moving and a transfer of title happens. Therefore they are used as a receipt; which is issued by the carrier when the product has been loaded onto a vessel. We constantly see BLs mentioned when looking at proof of shipments; especially in relation to customs and insurance. It is also used as commercial proof to show agreements have been fulfilled.

A bill of lading is used as a carrier's receipt in relation to the product that is being carried.

4. What are the different types of BL?

There are two types of bill of lading:

- (1) On board bill of lading: this is when there is no discrepancy in what the description of the shipper sets out and the product that is actually on the vessel.
- (2) A clean bill of lading: shows that goods have been loaded on board. However, if the carrier realises that the bill of lading is different from goods on board then evidence can be cited on the clean bill of lading.

Note that once the bill of lading is transferred to a third party, there is no possible way to mark a discrepancy.

A claused bill of lading: is when one can see a difference between the description in the bill of lading and the product that is presented. Therefore it will only be marked where the product was loaded in this type of bill.

A bill of lading is used as goods are transferred between the carrier and the shipper; so they are used to show that a contract of carriage has been effected and upon receiving the goods they will usually undertake to deliver them.

There is also the Switch Bill of Lading - read our article here which describes what a switch BL is.

5. Does this class as a document of title?

A bill of lading is usually classed as a document of title when the purchaser of goods is receiving product from the carrier.

We usually see bills of lading classed in two areas; being a straight BL and a to order BL. A straight BL is issued in favour of a specific named consignee; which is importantly not negotiable.

Conversely, an order BL is where there is no specific consignee; which is outlined on the document. Thus, this type of BL can be transferred or negotiated to be in favour of another party.

6. Why are there three (3) Bills of lading issued?

It is not always the case that three bills of lading are issued; the number used is stated on the bill. The traditional number is three; as one will be taken by the shipper, the consignee and the other is usually taken by the lender or another party. However, it is preferred to have less BLs; as the increased number creates a higher chance of releasing goods to the wrong party and fraud.
