The ability to think critically is something that students can improve.	The process of preparing a paper could be challenging for students who have difficulty properly comprehending the topic.
Students will showcase their comprehension of the content.	Students might need to set aside to time to accurately learn APA format

Will you implement the technique? Why or why not?

I intend to put this strategy into action since I think that the benefits of writing a final report on the content covered in the course outweigh the advantages. By having my students write a final paper, I will be able to evaluate their comprehension of the material covered in the course and how they applied important ideas during the course of the semester, therefore bringing them together with their research.

If so, how will you mitigate any challenges?

As a result of my decision to proceed with implementing the strategy of having my students write a final paper as their evaluation, I will be required to take measures to minimize any issues that may develop throughout the writing process. I can assume that pupils will have queries about their analysis, research, sources, and maybe even any formatting problems that they may have. The strategy that I want to use to overcome these obstacles is to make myself accessible to my students and to arrange time in advance to assist them whenever they have queries. If I am unable to assist my students for whatever reason, I will make available to them resources such as the writing center and the student success center to provide them with further tutoring.
