

Weekly News

Assalaamalaikum dear parents. I want to sincerely thank you for all the support you have given in your child's learning. I can see that they are better understanding the sight words and the beginning blends we have learned so far. They are all very excited to read. Also, their math skills are improving as well. The students are counting backwards while they are subtracting using various techniques such as counting dots, teddy bears, drawing, using their fingers and a number line. Also, thank you for reading to them every night. They absolutely love to share what you read to them every night.

Reminders

- Review the sight word boards I have given each child in a ziplock bag. They have cut and pasted the words out by themselves. Please return them back on Monday.
- Review the song they will be singing for the fundraising dinner using this link:

Star Student

Salsabil Abuhashish

Salsabil has shown such immense growth in her academics. She uses the sound of the alphabet to remember her sight words and beginning blends. In math class, she confidently counts backwards. Salsabil pays great attention to the detail of her work and is a role model for good behavior :)

A Look at Next Week...

For English, we will use the sight boards daily and the student who gets the most correct will get a prize. We are continuing to learn more sight words as well. In Science, each student will be planting their own plant as a science project next week. The students will continue to learn about social skills in social studies. Finally, for math, I look forward to practicing addition and subtraction problems with them using games. Thank you again your support dear parents.
