Our Little Free Library Just Got Even Better!

Introducing the Children's Annex

We're thrilled to announce an exciting addition to our Little Free Library at Mackenzie Circle and Ardmore Street – a brand new Children's Annex!

Designed Just for Young Readers

Two weeks ago, we relocated our beloved two-story blue Little Free Library to give it the visibility it deserves. The response from our community has been wonderful! Now, we're taking it a step further with a dedicated space designed specifically for our youngest neighbors.

The new light blue Mini Shed unit has been added to the post at child-friendly height, making it easy for little hands to reach their next favorite story. With a single tall shelf designed to accommodate children's books perfectly, this cheerful addition creates a magical book-browsing experience for preschoolers and early readers.

Why a Children's Annex?

We know that fostering a love of reading starts early. By creating a dedicated space at a child's eye level, we're:

- Encouraging independence – children can browse and select books on their own
- Making reading accessible – no need for adult help to reach the books
- Creating excitement – a special library just for them!
- Building early literacy – easy access means more opportunities to explore books

Perfect for Growing Families

Whether you're looking for board books for toddlers, picture books for preschoolers, or early readers for beginning students, the Children's Annex is stocked and ready. Parents and grandparents, please feel free to browse with your little ones and share books your children have outgrown.

How to Use Both Libraries

- Main Library (Upper Unit): Adult fiction, non-fiction, young adult, and general reading
- Children's Annex (Lower Unit): Picture books, board books, early readers, and children's literature

The same simple rule applies to both: "Take a book, share a book" – anytime, day or night!

Join Us in Building Young Readers

Stop by with your children or grandchildren to check out this wonderful new addition. Watch their faces light up as they discover they have their very own library designed just for them!
