

WHAT DO I NEED TO KNOW HOW TO DO?

This is likely a common question for many of us. TV and movies provide a glimpse into the firearms realm, but it is a very unrealistic view. The answer is somewhat dependent up on the user's purpose for owning a gun. The intended uses for most gun owners can range from plinking to hunting to self-defense to competition in the civilian realm. Defending others and war fighting are primary uses in the police and military realms. All of these uses require the shooter to be highly proficient in safety, gun-handling, marksmanship, movement, and use of cover skills. Volumes have been written about all of these subjects. These topics/skills can seem to be complex and overwhelming. That need not be the case, and that is a primary reason that my company exists. Paul Howe at CSAT has developed a unique way to simplify these critical skills so that average person can comprehend and become highly proficient in them. Being an expert pistol shooter is within reach for nearly everyone. Please let me help you along that path. You won't be disappointed.
