

My love of design started at a very young age, growing up in a household of creatives, mom was an avid flower- arranger and artist, dad was a tool-and-die maker, welder, and educator who dabbled in photography. At the tender age of 7 my older sister and I were enrolled in the local junior garden club to start our training in the art of floral design and horticulture– a love which has continued throughout my adulthood. This hobby led me to pursue other artistic endeavors such as event planning and interior design. The latter led me to try my hand in redesigning our home in Rhode Island, (much to my husbands' chagrin, as he came home from work to find a wall removed) and act as designer and project manager on our new home build in North Carolina. My enthusiasm for design did not stop there – the move to Florida brought additional opportunities to test the waters of my design and project management skills with a remodel of our 1970's home (inside and out), and then our condo (also stuck in the 70's) all while working full-time at my chosen career and taking on interior design projects for family and friends. The move to Florida also opened opportunities to further my education and pursue a certification in interior design, first at Ringling College of Art and eventually Pinellas Technical College (completion scheduled for 2024). After retiring from a long career in banking, finance, and legal, I've taken my passion for interior design and embarked on a new career – at the end of 2022 I launched my interior design firm.

I look forward to partnering with you, your architect, and builder to create spaces which embodies your vision and lifestyle.
