

Bookee & La La Say

No to the Pressure to Be Stupid!

A little kid's anti-bullying message

Dr. Shawn Council, Esquire

©2012 Council Publishing, Bloomfield, CT. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means without written permission from the author, Dr. Shawn Council, Esquire.

Hi Bookee. I am a little sad today.
Why La La? Did something happen in school today?

Yes, there was a girl in school that started laughing at me when I raised my hand to ask the teacher a question. She said that I am always asking questions and that I am just a “know it all.”

Later that day, Ashaquana tried to trip me in the hallway and I almost fell down and hurt myself. Several of the students laughed at me and no one tried to help. I felt so all alone.

Your big brother is always here to protect you. You are never alone
La La. I love you!

La La, are you feeling better now?

La La, I am sorry that some of your classmates were unkind to you. But don't let the bullies get you down. Fight back by exceling in school.

A few weeks, later...

Hi Bookee, guess what? I received an “A” on my history, math and science tests. Wow La La, I am so proud of you.

But Bookee, when the teacher announced to the class that I received three A's, some of the kids rolled their eyes, snickered and laughed at me.

They call me a “brainyack” and a nerd. There is too much pressure to be stupid. Being smart is just not cool Bookee.

Also, Bookee, the kids at school won't eat lunch with me in the cafeteria. What is wrong with me, Bookee? Why don't they like me?

Nothing is wrong with you La La. Don't give in to the pressure to be stupid. Some of those kids are jealous of you because you are smart and beautiful. Be yourself and you will make friends.

Okay Bookee. I will listen to you and be myself.

Hi Bookee. Meet my new friend Wendy. We have a lot in common and she is smart and beautiful too. Thanks for all of your good advice big brother.

The End.

About the Author

Dr. Shawn Council, Esquire has a Doctorate in Law & Policy and a Juris Doctorate. She is licensed to practice law in GA and CT. Currently, her office is located in beautiful Stockbridge, GA. Her law practice focuses on car accidents, employer discrimination (defense/employer only) and real estate transactions, residential and commercial.

Dr. Council is an adjunct Professor who has taught Philosophy, Social Justice, African American Studies and Introduction to Philosophy.

Dr. Council hails from very humble beginnings. Her life, as a child, was very fragile and fraught with many days and nights of food scarcity. Nonetheless, she overcame many obstacles, and attributes much of her success to her love for reading. A love that began as a very small child that never abated. She hopes to spark that same love of reading in some young child, today. That is her sincere hope.