Liturgy of the Word

- Revelation 11:19a; A woman clothed with the sun, 12:1–6a, 10ab with the moon beneath her feet.
- Psalm 45 "The queen stands at your right hand, arrayed in gold."
- 1 Corinthians 15:20–27 Christ, the firstfruits; then those who belong to him.
- Luke 1:39–56 The Almighty has done great things for me:he has raised up the lowly.

"Blessed is the fruit of your womb." This line from the Hail Mary is expressed in today's readings in vastly different ways. In the vision from Revelation, the blessed child who is born to the woman clothed with the sun is caught up to God's throne. In Paul's letter, that child, through his resurrection, destroys death and brings us all to new life. In the Gospel, Elizabeth and her unborn son, John, become the first to recognize the Lord's presence in Mary's womb. May we, like Mary, respond with words of praise to God.

Pastor's Reflection

Magnifica Humanitas continued. In Chapter 3 of the encyclical Pope Leo analyzed the unique challenges of technological change. In chapter 4, Pope Leo invites us to consider how these challenges invite us as a society to do more in three ways: "rediscover truth as a common good; protect the dignity of work; and safeguard freedom" against dependence and commercialism (#131).

Truth: The Holy Father argues that the first response to technological change should be a social recommitment to the truth. Disinformation is certainly a serious problem today. Those with the best platform for information dissemination can twist facts to suit their political, social or economic agenda. The ability of AI to create images that appear true but are nothing more than fiction is a serious concern. Pope Leo's insists that truth belongs to all and not just to the powerful. For this reason, the Holy Father discusses the importance of schools. Critical thinking will increasingly become important in this new age.

Work: Pope Leo reminds us that Catholic Social Teaching has always upheld the dignity of human work. Work is not just a means to an end (making money, supporting economic development), it enhances the dignity of the worker. AI presents a challenge in that there is a danger that human work will serve technology instead of technology supporting humanity. Rather than finding ways to adapt technology to make work more humane and less burdensome, AI has the potential of forcing humanity to adapt itself to the demands of technology. For this reason, Pope Leo argues that we cannot simply rely solely on market forces to shape economies, but that societies have a responsibility to direct economic forces toward the common good, especially in their support of families.

Freedom: An essential component of human dignity is the freedom of individuals. AI risks undermining that freedom by making us more dependent and subject to commercial interests. The potential for addiction and the impact on mental health challenge us to do better at "fostering education in digital sobriety and the protection of minors." The collection of data can also undermine freedom as that information is used to control others, especially the most vulnerable. Pope Leo highlights the many ways that slavery is still a reality, whether in the exploitation of workers who extract the resources technology needs, or the tragedy of human trafficking. In addition, the exertion of power through colonialism receives new energy from technology.

In these three areas: rediscovering truth, protecting work, and safeguarding freedom, we must work together and recognize that we have a shared responsibility to the inherent dignity of all people.
-Fr. Larry
