Virtual Zoom Program

The Colorful History of Tartan, being a portrait of People, Places and Practices

Presented by Melissa Weaver Dunning

Once a colorful pattern woven and worn by Scottish Highlanders, tartan was outlawed by the British government after the Jacobite Rebellion in 1745. The history of how tartan came to be both a fashion icon and a national symbol of Scotland is full of fascinating characters and stories.

Melissa lives in Shenandoah Valley, Virginia. Her mother taught her how to knit as a child, and she learned to weave and spin from Norman Kennedy in 1980 and hasn't looked back.

HHSG goes Virtual

HHSG will be doing virtual programs online using Zoom in place of our monthly meetings for now. We are also offering some Show and Tells on Zoom. New to Zoom? Linda Hartshorn, Ann Burroughs, or just about any board member is more than happy to practice with you so that you can attend our online events. We look forward to "seeing" you!

Donna Wildearth just completed this rug. It's the first weft-faced wool rug she's woven and was a challenge. Now it's brightening up her bedroom.

A recent commission in its new home. The weave structure is my usual Summer and Winter with Shaft Switching. The title of the rug is: "Bauhaus Collection: Laszlo Maholy-Nagy". Maholy-Nagy was a painter and this design is loosely patterned after one of his paintings. It was commissioned to go into the new owner's guest house. Nancy Kennedy
