ABOUT

Driven, heartfelt, and unapologetically authentic, Faith Schueler is carving her own path in today's country music scene. Born and raised in Charleston, South Carolina, Faith grew up with the ocean at her doorstep, a guitar in her hands, and country music in her heart. From singing in church to writing songs about life, love, and lessons learned, music has always been her way of connecting both to herself and to others.

Faith has shared the stage with Nashville stars like Lady A, Riley Green, and Scotty McCreery, performed at the Grand Ole Opry and major festivals, and opened for Flo Rida in Las Vegas. A talented songwriter, she's worked with producers including Charles Kelley and Eric Paslay and is a member of Song Suffragettes and The Women of Country.

Faith blends heartfelt storytelling with a modern country edge, with inspirations like Taylor Swift and Kelsea Ballerini. Fans see her as fun, fearless, and full of Southern soul. With charisma, powerhouse vocals, and songs that connect with all ages, Faith is making her mark on country music.
