ABOUT

Kolten Taylor blends country and rock in his songwriting, and inspired by his experiences as a blue-collar worker, observations of the world, and life in the country. He began playing guitar and writing music while attending college in Champaign-Urbana, collaborating with close friends and family, which evolved into a full-fledged recording and regional act.

His two latest singles, “Neon Glow” and “Good Time Bad,” are the first to feature his full band, including Nashville guitarist Zach Dable, marking the start of a dynamic writing and production partnership. Taylor has opened for artists such as Noah Hicks, Jason Boland, Alex Williams, and Huser Brother Band. With authentic, heartfelt lyrics and raw performances, his music resonates deeply, connecting with audiences through relatability and energy.
