Florian Dagoury, the current world's top static breath-hold free diver - he officially held his breath for 10 minutes and 30 seconds - has been diagnosed with myocarditis and pericarditis 40 days after his second dose with the Pfizer vaccine. The free diver shared his adverse reaction on Instagram:

"After my 2nd dose I noticed that my heart rate was way higher than normal and my breath hold capacities went down significantly. During sleep I'm at 65-70bpm instead of 37-45bpm. During the day I'm now always over 100bpm instead of 65bpm, even when I sit down and relax. Once I even reach 177bpm while having dinner with friends !!!! 40days after 2nd jab, I had no progress so I went to see another cardiologist and got diagnosed with Myocarditis, Pericarditis and Trivial Mitral regurgitation! I'm now struggling to reach 8min breath hold, 150m down and I even have a strong urge to breath doing 40m dives. 30% decrease on my diving performance roughly."

The 2016 Olympic gold medalist cyclist, Greg Van Avermaet, has thrown in the towel for the World Championships this year after saying his immune system has been compromised by the coronavirus vaccine he received in June.

“I got my results on Monday night and it’s not really good. That is to say: Nothing can be seen from the blood values. Perfect, as always, which is also my great strength. Other data proves that there is something wrong with my immune system. My body is fighting an unknown adversary and that is probably the vaccine. I sleep well, train well and feel good, but I am missing 3% of my top form.”

Brandon Goodwin: 26-Year-Old NBA Player Suffers Blood Clots Shortly After Receiving The COVID-19 Vaccine, Possible End Of Career

Former Atlanta Hawks point guard Brandon Goodwin said he developed blood clots after receiving the Covid vaccination which resulted in him missing the end of the 2020-21 NBA season.

In a post on Twitch, Goodwin said: “Yes, the vaccine ended my season. One thousand percent.” He also said that he was told: “not to say anything about it, not to tell anybody.” Goodwin continued:

“I got sick and I never quite recovered from it. I would always have back pain, I was just super tired in the games. I felt like I couldn’t run up and down the court. My back was hurting. My back really started hurting bad. Then, I’m like, ‘OK. I need to go to the doctor. That’s when I found out I had blood clots. That all happened within the span of a month. I was fine until then. I was fine up until I took the vaccine, I was fine... Yes, the vaccine ended my season. One thousand percent.”

Jeremy Chardy: 34-Year Old Former World No. 25 Tennis Player Ends Season After 'Violent, Near Paralyzing Pain' From Vaccine Injury

Veteran French tennis player, Jeremy Chardy, suspended his season in September after suffering a debilitating reaction to a Covid-19 vaccine.

"Since I had my vaccine (between the Olympics and the US Open), I have had a problem, I've had a series of struggles. Suddenly, I cannot train, I cannot play," said the 34-year-old. The former world number 25 explained that he felt violent pains all over his body as soon as he made any physical effort.

"Now I have been to see two doctors, I have done some tests so I know what I have and the most important thing is to take care of myself. I prefer to take more time to take care of myself and be sure that in the future I will not have any problem rather than trying to get back on the court as quickly as possible and find myself still having health problems."

Belgian cyclist, Greg Luysen, was forced to end his cycling career after heart problems caused by the Covid-19 vaccine. He became unwell during the Kortemark Race in September before being taken to the hospital and diagnosed with heart failure.

“I felt a huge pressure in my chest and it was so bad that I had to leave the race. I was taken to hospital and diagnosed with heart failure. I already had a fever a number of times for no apparent reason after my second COVID-19 vaccine, but I had never thought about the casual relationship. Further tests have now shown that my heart muscle is affected and that my body reacts poorly to intensive activity... My heart only works for 75% and I feel pressure in my chest every day, which also always leads to severe headaches.”

Francesca Marcon: 38-Year-Old Volleyball Player Develops Pericarditis After Her Second Pfizer COVID-19 Vaccine

Italian volleyball player, Francesca Marcon, immediately suffered from shortness of breath and chest pains after the Pfizer vaccine. She went to the emergency room the next day where doctors diagnosed her with pericarditis. The volleyball player shared her adverse reaction on Instagram:

“Perhaps this speech of mine may be a bit blasphemous, but I ask myself: is there no form of compensation for those who suffer health damage after getting the vaccine? I state that I am not anti-vax but I have never been convinced of making this vaccine and I have had confirmation. I don’t know if you are interested but I have had and still have post-vaccine pericarditis. Who pays the price for all this?”

Kyle Warner: Professional Mountain Biker Suffers From Pericarditis After Pfizer Vaccine

Professional mountain biker, Kyle Warner, was diagnosed with pericarditis and postural orthostatic tachycardia syndrome after receiving the Pfizer vaccine. Kyle shared his vaccine injury on his YouTube channel at the start of October.

“The second thing (besides pericarditis) that I’ve been dealing with this whole time has been something called POTS (Postural orthostatic tachycardia syndrome). I got that diagnosed the other day at the cardiologist’s office, and what was really hard is that he kind of told me that, you know, we’re not sure how to treat it. Then when he told me it could be 12-18 months to heal from this. I was just kind of shocked. I came home and broke down crying, mostly out of frustration. Frustration that there’s not really a clear path forward. I think that’s been the hardest thing with this whole thing.”

Even without confirmation, Christian Erikkson and Sergio Aguerro both had reactions to the vaccine. A lot of elite athletes where the pool is only small having a lot of side effects....
