Flatnöse Blended Scotch Whisky

Flatnöse Blended Scotch Whisky is a rich, full-flavoured blend, with hints of pepper and smoke, bottled at a higher strength of 43% vol. Like the very best Scotch whiskies, it is unchill-filtered for much greater mouthfeel and persistence. Of course, there is Islay single malt whisky in the blend, to add spicy, peppery notes – we wouldn't have it any other way. Enjoy on its own, with ice or indeed with a splash of water or a mixer.

Bottled in small batches, in a high-quality and unusual bottle with a cork enclosure, it is aimed at a more discerning customer.

Colour: rich gold

Nose: gentle and smooth with hints of pepper

Taste: initial vivacity, then spices evolving towards cracked black pepper, the whole supported by a rich and even background. Long and persistent, ending in a gentle sweetness

Lords Of The Isles

Flatnose was the familiar name given to Ketill Bjornsson, one of the first 'Lords of the Isles'. These seafaring men ruled the vast, rugged and wild western seaboard of Scotland from around the 9th to the 15th century, from their base at Finlaggan on Islay.

Fiercely independent, lovers of life and community, we raise a glass to the Lords of the Isles and remind ourselves to live our lives like they did – born of adventure!

Boys Of The Isles

The 'Islay Boys Ltd' are Donald MacKenzie and Mackay Smith, from the villages of Port Charlotte and Portnahaven respectively, both situated on the Rhinns peninsula on the west of Islay, the mythical whisky island. They grew up amongst the 8 distilleries on Islay, and in their veins flows not blood, but Islay whisky!
