THE PREVAILING SPIRIT

OF CAMPBELTOWN

TALE 161 THE FIFTH WHISKY REGION

Campbeltown may be the smallest of the five whisky regions, but it is certainly one of the most established. In 1823, the Exercise Act made it desirable for illicit distillers to obtain licences. Almost overnight, Campbeltown became the most prominent hub of whisky production, with more than 28 distilleries packed into town. Bourbon casks were the traditional cask of choice, and Glen Scotia's style of liquid enjoys a very special complimentary relationship with this choice of wood maturation. Our Glen Scotia 10 year old is matured fully in first fill bourbon barrels – it is Glen Scotia at its most beautiful simplicity, giving us a true taste of the fifth whisky region as it would have been in its heyday. GLEN SCOTIA ~ IT'S THE WHISKY THAT BINDS US.

THE PREVAILING SPIRIT OF CAMPBELTOWN

Glen Scotia was born in a place like no other - a small town on the west coast of Scotland that was to become the 'Victorian Whisky Capital of the World'. The people of Campbeltown are stoic and proud, and our whisky has always had a wonderful way of bringing us together in times of need. Glen Scotia prevailed against the odds where some thirty other local distilleries fell. Today it stands proudly among the last of the many, by virtue of the community spirit that defines Campbeltown.
