

Marrenon,, PETULA, AOC Luberon, Rosé, 2020

AOC Luberon, Vallée du Rhône, France

The PETULA combines power and freshness, which makes it a real rosé for meals.

THE WINE

In 1966, Pétula Garcia, a rich Brazilian woman, inherited a forest house called Marrenon, located in the heart of the Luberon massif. Succumbing to the charm of the landscapes, she settles there and invites her friends from all over the world to discover and feast on this little known corner of Provence. She then asked the Luberon winegrowers to select a vintage that she signed Marrenon. We wanted to pay tribute to the spirit of conviviality that animated Petula and that still animates us!

With its deep salmon-pink color, PETULA offers a nose of little red berries, with a touch of strawberries (Maras des Bois) and raspberries backed by soft spices. A sincere and expressive nose on the fruit and slightly crispy. The juicy and lively mouth makes this wine a rosé of character. It is characterized by its roundness and astonishing redcurrant and mango notes. This wine, combining power and freshness, is a rosé to be enjoyed with any meal.

TASTING NOTES

Adorned with a beautiful pale color with a light purple hue.

The PETULA vintage delivers a nose of small red berries, a touch of Maras des Bois and notes of passion fruit.

The palate is juicy with an almost milky, round and acidic impression. Notes of mango, white flesh fruits accompany the aromatic finish.
