

RIPA AUTHORISING OFFICERS WORKSHOP

COURSE OVERVIEW

Those working in public authorities should have an understanding of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (RIPA) Act 2000.

Public authorities that use RIPA will also be subject to inspections by the IPCO Authorisation and Oversight. This is a statutory obligation. Inspectors will scrutinize the organisations records to determine compliance and may interview relevant staff. Therefore, it is vital that Authorising Officers have a good understanding of the Act and know what makes a good application, what to consider when making an authorisation decision and how to correctly record this information.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Describe Directed Surveillance and its key elements.
- Discuss the content of an application for Authorisation of Directed Surveillance Activity (DSA).
