SPOT THE WARNING SIGNS

Below is a list of commonly seen traits which may provide an indication of waste crime. Please note these are indicators only and should not been seen as evidence of an offence. A full investigation should be undertaken before enforcement action is considered.

- The operator advertises waste removal but gives no clear business identity.
- Advertising claims that the business is “licensed”, “registered” or “authorised” but there are no registration numbers provided.
- The registration details appear inconsistent with the business name or location.
- Adverts repeatedly emphasis cash, no receipt, or no paperwork.
- Customer reviews or public posts allege mishandling of waste.
- Vehicle, phone number, email, or trading name appears across multiple waste-related adverts.
- Business uses a trading name that is difficult to reconcile with its legal identity.
