Welcome to AILD

A Premier Educational Resource & Specialized Learning Community

At the Autism Institute for Learning & Development (AILD), we believe that every child can learn when instruction is tailored to the way they learn best. Through The AILD Learning Approach™, we provide individualized educational programs designed to support autistic learners and students with ADHD, dyslexia, executive functioning challenges, and other learning differences. Founded by educator Eillim Cintron, M.Ed., a Florida-certified Exceptional Student Education teacher, Autism & Behavior Specialist, and autism parent, AILD was created to offer families an educational experience that combines evidence-informed teaching practices with meaningful, real-world learning opportunities.

Rather than organizing students by age or grade level alone, AILD emphasizes developmental readiness, individualized instruction, and functional academics to help every learner build confidence, independence, and lifelong skills. Families may choose from several instructional delivery models, including Home Instructional Programs and our Full-Time Drop-Off Learning Program, allowing each child to receive the level of support that best meets their educational needs.

Beyond academics, AILD partners closely with families through educational consultation, progress monitoring, assessments, and ongoing communication because we believe meaningful progress happens when educators and families work together as a team.

Our mission is simple:

To empower every learner with the knowledge, confidence, and life skills needed to thrive both inside and outside the classroom.

THE AILD LEARNING APPROACH™

Individualized. Intentional. Meaningful.

At the Autism Institute for Learning & Development (AILD), we believe every child deserves an educational experience designed around who they are, not simply their age, diagnosis, or grade level. The AILD Learning Approach™ combines evidence-informed teaching practices, functional academics, individualized instruction, and meaningful real-world learning to help every student develop the confidence, independence, and skills needed to thrive both in school and in everyday life. Rather than asking children to fit into a program, we build the program around the child.

Our Teaching Philosophy

Every Child Learns Differently

We recognize that every learner has unique strengths, interests, and developmental needs. Instruction is individualized to help every student experience meaningful success.

Functional Before Traditional

Academic learning is most meaningful when students can apply it to everyday life. We intentionally connect classroom instruction with practical life skills, communication, problem-solving, and independence.

Growth Over Comparison

Progress is measured by each child's individual growth rather than comparison to grade-level expectations or peers.

Families Are Partners

Parents are an essential part of the educational journey. Through ongoing communication, consultation, and collaboration, we work together to support every learner.

Hands-On & Engaging

Students learn through visual supports, manipulatives, movement, technology, creativity, and real-world experiences that make learning meaningful and enjoyable.

Whole-Child Development

We nurture academic, social, emotional, executive functioning, communication, and independent living skills because success extends far beyond academics alone.

WHAT MAKES AILD DIFFERENT?

What sets AILD apart is our commitment to providing a truly individualized educational experience for every learner. Through The AILD Learning Approach™, we combine personalized educational planning, functional academics, and evidence-informed instructional practices to support students with autism, ADHD, dyslexia, executive functioning challenges, and other learning differences. Founded and led by a Florida-certified Exceptional Student Education teacher with graduate specialization in Autism and Applied Behavior Analysis, AILD brings together professional expertise and the unique perspective of an autism parent. As an approved Direct Provider for Step Up For Students, we offer bilingual educational support, individualized consultation, and ongoing partnership with families to help every child build confidence, independence, and meaningful lifelong skills.

Our Promise

We don't simply teach curriculum.
We build confident learners, capable problem-solvers,
and independent individuals prepared for meaningful lives beyond the classroom.
