This album, in its entirety, was composed, engineered, mixed, mastered, designed, and produced - in a week - by Daryl James...a man who now sits disabled, unable to play a musical instrument or sing due to brain damage.

I chose CD Baby (cdbaby.com) as my distributor.

This album represents a "genre hop" for me, from my own Texas-flavored brand of Americana to electronic music sans lyrics. I composed this entire album, start to finish, in a week. I had to. The past couple of years have been difficult for everyone. My biological father (with whom I never reconciled), died of lung cancer April 27. My aunt Diana died of pancreatic cancer a couple months ago. We buried my grandfather after a stroke/aneurysm a couple of days ago. Hard year? You could say that.

This album came out of all that and more. If it can help someone else, that's the dream.

First and foremost, I thank God for giving me the gift of music. I also thank my family and close friends for being there for me, helping me through the hard times, and providing me with real-life examples of God actively working in my life. I mean that. You may not realize it, but you have all helped my prayers come true. Thank you for that.

I also want to thank you, listener. Your purchase of this music is helping a disabled man support himself and feel valuable. I hope this album helps you in some way, and I hope you enjoy the music.

Thank you all.
